Congress Comes Back.
New York to Peking.
Young Men, Old Women.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

KING GEORGE has been a faithful friend and servant of the British people and their empire, obedient to the people's will, loyal to the national spirit.

THE sympathy of the world is with his family, and especially with Queen Mary, who has set an admirable example before the women of the world.

THE "lame duck" session of Congress is at work. Farmers need relief, the Kellogg peace agreement awaits decision, cruisers, recommended by President Coolidge, need appropriation.

And the country needs airplanes and submarines.

WE TALK about them, other nations build them, including Japan. General Mitchell, dropped from the army because he took national defense too seriously, praises the wisdom of Japanese preparations.

Latest news concerning them tells of enormous submarines, up to 4,500 tons, and of effective cooperation between Japan's submarines and airplanes.

JAPANESE fliers land on the ice off the Kuril Islands, south of Kamchatka. Submarines come up through holes in the ice and supply the fliers with oil, gas, provisions, and repair parts as needed.

That is a system hard to break down.

A COMMERCIAL air route promising greatest success, according to General Mitchell, would run from New York to Peking. That should interest the Boeing Airplane Company, of Seattle, and C. E. Mitchell, of New York's National City Bank, who has "bought into" Boeing with some of his friends.

INTEREST saved on commercial paper, carrying it from New York to Peking in 65 hours, instead of four weeks, would suffice to make the road pay. And the planes could make money, carrying the most expensive furs. A fine sable skin weighs only one ounce and is worth four or five times as much as an ounce of gold.

A MASSACHUSETTS woman, aged sixty, formerly assistant pastor of a First Christian Church, marries her twenty-one-year-old Sunday school pupil and the world criticizes.

The boy's mother says: "I am sorry for him." The bride's thirty-year-old son says: "Mother must have been crazy."

PLATO, wise philosopher, would not criticize the couple.

More than 2,000 years ago he said that older women should keep very young men out of mischief.

He said also that men should become fathers in middle life when they have intelligence developed.

If more young men married old women, waited respectfully and faithfully until they died, then married wisely someone younger, the race might improve. However, that will not happen often.

WASHINGTON rumor suggests that Mrs. Raymond Robbins will be appointed secretary of labor in Mr. Hoover's cabinet.

No better choice could be made, should Mr. Hoover decide to give one seat in the cabinet to a representative of one-half the population, the half that was largely responsible for the gigantic Republican vote.

MRS. ROBBINS, who was Margaret Dreier, comes of a family devoted to intelligent public service. She knows working conditions among men and women and has worked incessantly to better them. And this she has done unselfishly, being a woman of wealth.

A SHIVER ran through Wall street yesterday with call money at ten per cent and stocks dropping. Big powers in finance, including the federal reserve, are firm in their profitable conviction that the way to help the public is to practice usury to the limit. That is good for bank stocks temporarily, but may not be good for banking, or anything else, in the long run.

AFTER a while the financial chill passed and some stocks climbed to "new highs." Bears came out of their gloomy caves and licked their lips. Their feast is not yet ready, however.

There is so much money and the Hoover boom should normally run along at least until after the Hoover inauguration. That would be only common politeness.

CAPT. JOHN DONALD SMITH, a scientist of distinction and oldest Yale graduate, is dead in Baltimore, one hundred years old.

His death reminds you that the history of mankind to date is a short story.

A PERIOD of time, only 120 times as long as Captain Smith's life, takes you back to the late stone age, 12,000 years ago.

How much men have accomplished in 120 long lives.

What will they accomplish in a million of such lives?

Science assures you that the world will be still young 100,000,000 years hence, with at least 900,000,000 years more to go. Very encouraging to know we have so much time ahead.

THE east and middle west begin to believe there must be power, or inspiration, or something in the western air. Stanford University, from northern California, beats the Army football team. And the University of Southern California beats the powerful team of Notre Dame.

The west starts a game believing that it must win "just naturally," and that helps.

BOOTLEGGING is profitable. Philadelphia investigators find, in various banks, mysterious bootleg deposits running up to $13,000,000. It is suggested that higher pay may cut down graft among those that get bootleggers' bribes.

That is folly. Twenty-five dollars a week more pay will not offset bootleg profits of $50,000 a year.

CONGRESS GETS TREATIES

POLICE TO BARE BANK RECORDS

The question of how some city policemen were able to amass immoderate bank accounts on moderate salaries will be put to some of those same policemen tomorrow or Thursday, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner definitely announced today. It was very likely, Gardner said, that Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh would be among them.

After calling one witness today, Gardner and his assistant, George P. Langfitt, went into a conference over the records of police bank accounts laid before the special grand jury last week. The jury was dismissed at noon, and Gardner and Langfitt began an intensive analysis of those accounts.

Ten or a dozen police commanders will be summoned before the jury to explain the source of their disproportionate wealth, Gardner said. Among them, he declared, will be several inspectors. The summoning of Supt. Walsh, he said, was "very probable."

LAST WITNESSES

The police commanders will be the last witnesses the jury will hear in its investigation of graft in city and county, Gardner said. After their explanations have, or have not, been given, the jury's presentment will be drafted.

With a maze of testimony to be digested into that presentment, it seemed unlikely that it would be in readiness for Judge James B. Drew's consideration before next week. Whom it would recommend for indictment Gardner would not specify, but he has consistently predicted that it will not name a school of "small fry" as did the jury's first return, a month ago.

Gardner intends to work into the presentment a suggestion for revision of the police system in the city in order to divorce it from politics. He has not formulated a definite plan yet, but regards the Detroit system, which operates under a civilian commissioner, as the best extant.

METRO CHARTER AID ASKED OF PEOPLE

All citizens of Allegheny county, as well as the officials of its 122 municipalities, are invited to help frame the Metropolitan Plan charter.

The will of the people concerned in the proposed consolidation of all Allegheny county municipalities under the Metropolitan Plan, as ratified at the last election, is sought, in a statement issued today by the Metropolitan Plan Commission through its chairman, Joseph T. Miller.

The framing of the charter is the next task of the commission. To become operative, the charter must be ratified at a special election by a majority vote of all the electors in the county, in addition to receiving a 2 to 1 vote in a majority of the cities, boroughs and townships.

COUNTY LEAD CITED

After calling attention to the fact that the majority in favor of the Metropolitan amendment at the recent election for the state as a whole was only 35,000, but that Allegheny county gave a majority of 85,423, the statement reads:

"The exceedingly favorable public opinion reflected by the returns in Allegheny county greatly encourages the Metropolitan Plan Commission in the difficult task of drafting a charter which will obtain the necessary approval of the State Legislature and the people of Allegheny county as well.

"The people of the county are one community socially, commercially, industrially, and it is evident that they are beginning to think as a unit in the solution of their common administrative problems also. They now have before them an opportunity for one of the outstanding achievements of the last 100 years in municipal government. They may, if they will, make the charter of the metropolitan government a model for metropolitan areas all over the world.

"The municipal units which voted against the amendment are to be just as cordially invited to the council table in framing the new charter as the communities

GAIN NOTED IN FEVER OF KING

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — A slight increase in the temperature of King George was noted, although not specifically mentioned, in a bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace at 3:30 this afternoon. It follows:

"The King passed a quiet morning. His temperature is now 100.2. The slight improvement in his general condition noted in the last bulletin is maintained."

The bulletin was signed by the five physicians—Lord Dawson, of Penn; Sir Stanley Hewitt, Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard, Dr. L. E. H. Whitby and Sir Humphrey Rolleston.

The afternoon bulletin did not mention the condition of the King's heart.

The morning bulletin had not specified the patient's temperature, but one issued yesterday said it was 99.8.

WALES RUSHING HOMEWARD

As King George fought his illness today in what may be a battle for his life, his son and heir to his throne—the Prince of Wales—was rushing homeward aboard the cruiser Enterprise.

The cruiser is traveling so speedily that the admiralty expects she will reach Suez Friday night.

To make such progress it was said that the cruiser probably has been traveling about 29 knots.

At Alexandria, Egypt, another cruiser is to meet the prince, with a flying boat ready should he choose to fly the rest of the journey home.

The Duke of Gloucester, brother of the Prince of Wales, today was headed for Capetown where he plans to board a mail steamer for England.

STATE COUNCIL NAMED

WITCH KILLERS' HEARING SET

YORK, Pa., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Counsel having been named for each of the three confessed slayers of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, the prisoners will be given a hearing tomorrow on a charge of murder before Alderman W. F. Owen.

Definite evidence that John Blymyer knew Gertrude Rudy, whose death, more than a year ago, as the result of gunshot wounds, has remained unsolved, was given today to City Detective Wilbur H. Myers.

Blymyer, Wilbert G. Hess and John Curry, three believers in witchcraft, all of whom have confessed to killing Rehmeyer for a lock of his hair to bury and thus break a spell, will be taken from jail tomorrow to the hearing under a heavy guard.

COOLIDGE IN MESSAGE STRESSES PEACE, FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Getting together for the second day of the session, Congress received from President Coolidge today the ideas of the executive branch of the government on what should be done in the three short months left for it to live.

The first House applause, largely from the Republican side, came when the Kellogg anti-war treaty section was reached, and after it was stated that the "observance of this covenant, so simple and so straightforward, promises more for the peace of the world than any other agreement ever negotiated among the nations."

Again hand-clapping greeted the declaration that this country harbored no militaristic designs toward any other country.

SIGNERS ADHERE TO TREATY

Accompanying the treaty was a brief message in which Mr. Coolidge asked ratification and said he "had no reason to believe" that any of the signatories to the treaty would not adhere to it.

Senator Borah already has announced that his committee will take up the treaty tomorrow.

The Senate clerk finished the message in much quicker time than did the House, and before adjourning out of respect for the late Representative Oldfield, of Arizona, it received a batch of nominations and the Kellogg treaty for consideration.

GET NEW FARM BILL

As the message was being transmitted to the ears of the assembled lawmakers through the medium of reading clerks, Senator McNary (Rep.), of Oregon, quietly placed before them a new farm relief plan, following generally the administration's desires in the past and minus the famous and much-fought-over equalization fee of the McNary Haugen bill.

The reading of the President's message, containing recommendations of the Chief Executive on many familiar subjects, was the principal business before the House and Senate for the day, both desiring to adjourn out of respect to members who had died during the recess.

But the committees began to get busy, with Chairman Britten, of the House Naval Committee, holding a place in the spotlight with the answer of Prime Minister Baldwin of Great Britain to his naval conference proposal. Britten insisted he had violated no diplomatic ethics in explaining his dealing directly with the British statesman.

DIVERSE OPINIONS

The presidential message was first received in the Senate, and as it was being read a variety of opinion was expressed by senators as to its text. Notable among these were those of Senator Johnson, of California, who said the

RANCHER PINS TWO MURDERS TO FATHER

VICTORVILLE, Cal., Dec. 4.—Plunging into the arid heart of the Mojave desert, a party of officers, directed by Gordon Stewart Northcott, today scoured the scorched wastes for human remains to substantiate, if possible, the almost incredible story of the young Canadian that 11 victims of his Wineville "murder farm" had been buried in the burning sands.

In his weird tale of wholesale slaughter on his isolated chicken ranch, Northcott admitted he had slain five persons, four of whom were small boys, and accused his gray-haired father, Cyrus G. Northcott, and his 15-year-old nephew, Sanford Wesley Clark, of murdering two other youths.

Concerning the four other boys murdered, figuring in his story,

Dolores Del Rio Mourns Illness of Ex-Husband

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 4.—(INS.)—"I cannot forget we were man and wife for seven years."

Prostrate with sorrow over the critical illness of her divorced husband, Dolores Del Rio, Mexican film beauty, today voiced her intention of doing anything within her power to aid Jaime Del Rio, youthful playwright, in his fight against death in a Berlin hospital.

"Only last week I had a long letter from him, telling of a marvelous play he is writing about Hollywood," the actress said.

Miss Del Rio obtained a divorce last spring at Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

On her recent tour abroad, she was reported to have spent a great deal of her time in the company of her former husband.

The divorce was said to have been caused by the husband opposing his wife's screen career.

WELFARE FUND EXCEEDS DRIVE QUOTA BY $4,948

Success of the Welfare Fund which exceeded its $965,679 goal for 25 Allegheny county philanthropies today was declared to mark the first definite step toward community financing in Pittsburgh.

Hundreds of workers in the canvass at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel last night cheered the announcement by Chairman Augustus K. Oliver that a total of 47,282 contributors had sent the campaign "over the top" with gifts amounting to $970,627.17.

Chairman Oliver called for volunteers for next year's canvass and every man and woman in the room enlisted.

Today the Welfare Fund is shaping its organization for administering its funds through the various philanthropic bodies in its membership.

The first step toward its functioning was the election of delegates-at-large to the Welfare Fund Council.

A committee composed of Mrs. Frances Speer Reed, W. F. Rust and C. S. Mitchell nominated the following persons, who were elected: L. J. Affelder, Horace F. Baker, Arthur E. Braun, John F. Casey, Miss Isabella C. Chalfant, Dr. E. N. Clopper, Joseph Dilworth, J. Frank Drake, J. Rogers Flannery, Mrs. William Frew, Howard Heinz, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Irvin F. Lehman, Richard K. MONKEY'S TRICKS CAUSE MASTER'S MURDER AND SUICIDE

"JAKE" STOLE DINNER

Jake, pet monkey of Otto Danazzi, 50, of Broughton, stole Ernest Brickner's dinner. A quarrel ensued and Brickner ended it abruptly with bullets, one for Danazzi, one for himself.

WHERE MURDER AND SUICIDE CLAIMED TWO

Brickner was a miner and Danazzi a watchmaker. Both were unemployed and lived side by side in the two shacks shown above in the rear of the Lick Run Hotel, Broughton. Brickner was aged 65. Each body was found in the little room each man had occupied.

LOMBARDO

Carlo Lombardo heard the shot as Danazzi fell and spread the alarm.

SEVACUS

SEEKS HIS MASTER

Today, Jake, innocent cause of the tragedy, tugs at his leash and scrambles around, trying to get into the shack where his master was slain.

TWO LIVES PAY FOR SLIGHT TO MONKEY

Tugging on a leash outside a little mine shack in the rear of the Lick Run Hotel at Broughton today is "Jake," a pet monkey, who unwittingly brought tragedy to his master and his best friend—old men who lived as neighbors and cronies for many years.

Jake's master, Otto Danazzi, 50, resented an accusation brought against the pet by Ernest Brickner, 65, yesterday. Brickner said Jake stole his dinner—a juicy steak Brickner had placed outside his window to keep cool. An argument ensued.

As the quarrel waxed hot Jake jumped about excitedly—perhaps he tried to pacify the two men. Brickner whipped a gun from his pocket and fired point-blank into Danazzi's heart. He fell dead at Brickner's feet.

Neighbors hearing the shooting ran out. Brickner left the little shack and strode with determined step to his own shack next door. Carlo Lombardo, running from the hotel, encountered him as he stepped into the door, gun in hand.

"I'm going to end it all," Brickner told him.

Lombardo tried to dissuade him and another neighbor, Frank Sevacus came up. Lombardo went for help and Sevacus accompanied Brickner into the house and continued his pleadings.

A few seconds another shot rang out and Sevacus emerged with the announcement that Brickner was dead.

Jake remains on the leash outside his master's door. He chatters incessantly—trying to tell the world of his sorrow, perhaps.

Stotesbury on Job Again After Crash

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Edward T. Stotesbury, head of the banking house of Drexel & Co. and a member of the J. P. Morgan firm, yesterday completed his first day of business since he was injured in an automobile accident on October 30.

McKeesport Line Resumes With 1-Man Cars

One-man street cars resumed operation on the Evans avenue route, McKeesport, this morning, as a result of a temporary agreement between city officials and the traction board brought about at a meeting last night.

The service on the route was stopped a week ago after city officials had branded the use of one-man cars a "dangerous experiment." No further action will be taken until after a hearing before the Public Service Commission later this week.

KING'S FEVER HIGHER

state documents, the cabinet decided upon the appointment of a state council to carry on the administration of the government in the name of the King.

The state councillors are: Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, heir apparent to the British throne; Duke of York, second son of the King; Archbishop of Canterbury; the Lord Chancellor (Lord Hailsham), and Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Announcement that a state council had been appointed was made in the House of Commons by Premier Baldwin this afternoon.

The appointment was made at a meeting of the Royal Privy Council at Buckingham Palace at noon.

Premier Baldwin, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Lord Davidson, the Duke of York and Sir Maurice Hankey, who came to the palace for the session, were shown up to the sick room and were joined there by Queen Mary. The King took part in the proceedings, which were extremely brief, the members remaining with His Majesty only a few minutes.

Ordinarily appointment of a council of state is made by proclamation, but this course was not followed today.

In addressing Commons Premier Baldwin said:

"I am glad to say that King George was well enough this morning to permit a meeting of the Privy Council to be held."

HEART CAUSES CONCERN

The official medical bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace this forenoon indicated that His Majesty had passed a quieter night. Again, however, the King's doctors reiterated the disquieting phrase that anxiety concerning the King's heart must continue. The bulletin signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, read:

"The King has passed a quieter night. Though anxiety concerning his heart must continue, the improvement noted last evening is so far satisfactorily maintained."

QUEEN TAKES RIDE

Queen Mary, who did not take her usual daily outing yesterday, left the Buckingham Palace grounds in the royal motor car shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon for a brief constitutional.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, before beginning his sermon at the enthronement ceremonies today, said:

"You will be thankful to know that last night the King had six hours of sleep and though anxiety is not yet removed, we have good cause to be hopeful."

Everything would appear to center now in the question as to whether the King's heavily-taxed heart would stand the strain imposed by a fortnight's grievous illness. It is understood that the present condition might continue for some time without a material change.

London medical experts were of the opinion that undoubtedly the administration of oxygen to the King was for the purpose of relieving the strain on his heart and that it need not be regarded as a sensational step. A few years ago the use of oxygen was considered a last extremity. But it was explained that now it is used frequently as a precautionary assistance for the lungs to make the work of the heart as easy as possible. It was acknowledged, however, that oxygen would not be used except in very serious cases.

It was understood that the King's physicians were awaiting an increase in his majesty's strength now. Their anxiety was indicated in reports from the palace to be centered momentarily around the condition of his heart. Hope was expressed that if the King was able to pass a comfortable day, the improvement in his condition might be increased by the time the evening bulletin was issued.

METROCHARTER HELP IS ASKED

which voted in the affirmative. We hope, for example, to have the advice of our friends in McKeesport, who opposed the amendment, but whose suggestions as to the charter will be sought and will be as carefully considered as those from any other source.

OFFICES RETAINED

"In the framing of the charter, which will be submitted to the Legislature when the commission makes its report to that body at the approaching legislative session, the commission will need and hopes to receive the advice and co-operation not only of all the public officials of the 122 municipal governments affected, but the citizens of Allegheny county in general.

"The commission is retaining the offices assigned to it by the County Commissioners in Old City Hall, and there it hopes that representatives of municipalities and of every kind of organization interested in the public welfare will bring or send their suggestions and recommendations as to the Metropolitan Charter, indicating to the commission what they think ought to go into the charter as well as what should not go into it.

"The commission realizes that unless the charter fully satisfies the demands and expectations of the people it cannot secure their approval at the special charter election sometime after the adjournment of the Legislature, for the Constitutional Amendment requires that before the Metropolitan City can become a fact its charter must be ratified not only by a majority of the voters in the county as a whole, but by a 2 to 1 majority of all of the municipalities. That would be a sufficient reason for desiring public co-operation in the drafting of the charter even if there were no others."

There were less than half a dozen seats taken in the diplomatic gallery and that of the President was without a single occupant.

C. OF C. STARTS FUND-MEMBER CAMPAIGN

One hundred campaign teams engaged in the four-day drive by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to increase membership of that organization to 6,000 and secure it an income of $300,000 a year, began their canvass at 10 o'clock this morning.

It also is proposed to raise $100,000 in this campaign.

There are 437 members of the 100 teams, under command of William B. Rodgers, Thomas A. Dunn, E. T. Whiter, L. C. Bibler, Stewart C. McFarland, Henry Tranter and George R. Dorman.

The teams made first reports of their work today at a 12:45 luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

11 BOYS SLAIN ON RANCH

Northcott refused to say who committed them, but hinted that "certain members" of his family could reveal the identity of the slayer.

Northcott told how he killed one of the boys because he feared someone would take the boy from him.

DRESSED LIKE GIRL

This boy, whom he named as Walter Collins, was his favorite of all his victims. Northcott told how he used to dress him in girls' clothes and take him places.

"Everybody thought he was a girl," he smiled. "I was real proud of him."

Even the hardened police officers shuddered when Northcott asked them if they remembered the altar they found at his ranch home. They did.

"Well, that is where I made the boys say their prayers before I shot them," he added calmly. "You see, I wanted to be sure the little darlings would go to heaven."

Northcott blamed his father for his degeneracy. The senior Northcott is being held as a material witness. Northcott's mother, involved by some of the "murder farm" evidence, is in a Vancouver, B. C., jail, fighting extradition to California.

"I killed Walter Collins, Lewie Winslow, Alvin Gothea, a boy named Richard and another boy whose name I never knew," Northcott said.

"KEPT BODY THREE DAYS"

"I kept Walter Collins' body in the house for three days. I just couldn't stand the thought of burying him. Finally, Sanford and myself dug a grave and put the darling boy in it. I cried as we piled the dirt on his body.

"I killed Lewie Winslow, and Sanford killed the little one (Nelson). Sanford is a liar if he says he didn't.

"I am not saying who killed the other three boys at the ranch. I have taken all the blame that is mine. If anyone else wants to tell what they've done out there, it's up to them—I think I have 'come through' as well as can be expected."

Same Old N. Y. Since 1856, Says Drummer Dean

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Seventy-two years ago Horace Greeley sprung a fast one on the wise crackers of the day when he told Charles Terry, then a youth of 20:

"Go West, young man, go West."

Today "Uncle Charley," 92, oldest living traveling man, came back to New York to attend a meeting of the National Traveling Salesman's foundation. The foundation is campaigning for funds to build a home in North Carolina for superannuated salesmen.

"Uncle Charley," still cherishing the memory of his friend, the great editor, said of New York:

"Well, it hasn't changed much since I was here 50 years ago; it is still the biggest town I've ever made."

He now resides in Hutchinson, Kansas.

NEW FARM AID BILL STIRS OLD FEUD

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A new farm relief battle was launched in Congress today when Senator McNary (Rep.), of Oregon, sponsored a new $300,000,000 agricultural stabilization bill, with the equalization fee eliminated and the costs financed by the government.

The bill faced a thorny path to enactment as it found both Republican and Democratic forces divided over the political expediency of passing it at the short session. The under-cover struggle by groups within both parties to force a special session after March 4 made the fate of the measure extremely doubtful.

JARDINE APPROVAL CITED

McNary, author of the bill which President Coolidge vetoed a year ago, announced that his new measure had the indorsement of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, but he said nothing about Mr. Coolidge's attitude toward it. The measure would make an outright appropriation of $300,000,000 to aid the farmers, without carrying any provision for raising the funds. This will be in direct opposition to the President's known financial program and probably would be sufficient ground to provoke another veto even with the equalization fee eliminated.

The bill would establish a federal farm board, composed of the Secretary of Agriculture and six members appointed by the President. It would permit creation of stabilization corporations, one for each major crop, by the co-operative associations or individual farmers engaged in producing that crop. The farm board then would have authority to make loans up to $225,000,000 to these stabilization corporations "for the purpose of buying and storing the surplus of the commodity and meeting operating expenses in connection therewith."

NO PROVISION FOR LOSSES

The bill carried no specific provision for payment of the losses. Certain to be incurred by purchase of surplus crops. The losses apparently would be borne by the government. In the former measure, the losses were to have been paid by the farmers themselves through the equalization fee.

Another $25,000,000 would be set aside for loans to either stabilization corporations or co-operative associations for the purchase or construction of warehouses and marketing facilities. A second $25,000,000 fund would be authorized for loans to associations for use in advancing part payment on crops stored for future disposition. A $22,000,000 fund would be created to pay the cost of insurance by co-operatives against price declines. A $2,000,000 fund would be set aside for loans to co-operatives to be used in consolidating or merging various associations in any one crop.

McNary declared his new bill was designed to "handle surplus farm products and to promote orderly and efficient marketing."

NEW CONGRESS MEMBERSHIP FIGHT ON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The battle to force the adoption of reapportionment legislation at the present short session of Congress was under way today.

With the backing of a large group of members committed to his program, Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, yesterday, introduced a resolution to make reapportionment the first order of business when the House gets down to work probably tomorrow.

The adoption of McLeod's resolution automatically would keep the Fenn reapportionment bill before the House until it was disposed of.

Meanwhile, Republican leaders of the House went forward with their intended program of passing two and perhaps three of the appropriation bills before the Christmas holidays. This would delay consideration of the Fenn bill until January.

LEADER OPPOSED

Although committed to reapportionment, Republican Leader Tilson frowned upon McLeod's resolution to make reapportionment the first order of business. He expressed the view that such a course might lose votes for the measure when it finally reaches a vote.

Defending his resolution, McLeod said:

"The reapportionment group is fully organized and stands ready to take any measures necessary to secure prompt action by Congress to pass a reapportionment bill. We hope it will not be necessary to filibuster."

ROTHSTEIN JURY NEAR FINDINGS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The grand jury is expected to hand down the long-deferred indictments of George A. McManus and two alleged accomplices for the murder of Arnold Rothstein today, 30 days after the notorious gambler was shot in room 349 of the Park Central Hotel here.

District Attorney Joab A. Banton said he will be ready to start the trial next week.

NAMES CONCEALED

The unnamed companions of McManus will be named in the bills, but their identities will not be revealed to the public until and if they are arrested.

McManus, a former pal of Rothstein and the brother of a police lieutenant, faced the probability of indictment calmly, with friends asserting he has an air-tight alibi. They said he will admit he was in Room 349 a few hours before the shooting, but left to get some fresh air, leaving his coat behind him.

BANTON READY

Banton's reply to the alibi report was that "the case had been prepared to take care of this and every other possibility." Previously Banton announced he did not believe the gambler guilty, but was convinced that McManus knows the identity of the murderer.

Sydney Stajer, confidential secretary to Rothstein and one of the men held in $100,000 as a material witness, was taken from jail to testify before the grand jury yesterday, but on advice of counsel he refused.

"Tough Willie" McCabe, a Rothstein agent held in $10,000 bail, went before the grand jury and when he left Banton said he was through with him until the case goes to trial.

Rumors were recurrent today that as soon as indictments are returned in the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, Police Commissioner Joseph A. Warren would resign.

There had been previous rumors, since the slaying of the gambler, that the commissioner would resign because of the seemingly unsatisfactory work of the police in the case, but they had been denied.

Rothstein won $1,000,000 in bets on the election of Herbert Hoover for president—enough to pay the $300,000 i. o. u. for which he was slain and a series of gambling debts contracted over a two-year period of "bad business."

This was learned today by authorities as the grand jury concluding its investigation into his assassination prepared to find the indictments.

DEATH CANCELS CHILDREN'S PLAY-VISIT

Two little Coraopolis girls, en route to visit playmates in Bellevue last night, were separated by death when the auto in which they were riding crashed into a parked moving van in Beaver road, near Glenfield.

Evelyn Kennedy, 11, of 725 Highland avenue, Coraopolis, her skull fractured, died this morning in Dixmont Hospital. Her playmate, Mary Louise Simeral, 10, of 739 Highland avenue, Coraopolis, suffered only slight injuries. With her father, Alexander Simeral, 40, driver, also injured, she went home after having their injuries dressed in the hospital.

Simeral was taking the two girls to Bellevue when his auto crashed into a truck of the A. D. Richard Transfer Company, parked in the road while the driver repaired a leaking gas line. Simeral said there were no parking lights on the truck.

French Officer Slain For Smoking Cigar

FEZ, Morocco, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Smoking in a house considered sacred by Mohammedans was responsible for the killing of Capt. Guitard of the Twenty-fourth Infantry recently.

The French Army officer and his native orderly were billeted in a house where descendants of the prophet had resided at one time. Warned several times that he must kiss certain parts of the wall upon entering and above all refrain from smoking, the captain had treated the matter as a little Moroccan joke. One night after dinner the officer, reclining on a divan, was enjoying a big black cigar. The orderly entered, glared at his officer and without a word shot him through the heart.

CHILEAN QUAKE MAKES 20,000 HOMELESS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The death toll and property damage from Saturday's earthquake, centering at Talca and Constitucion, continued to grow today.

This afternoon the known deaths numbered 218, the seriously injured 257, the slightly injured more than 2,000 and the homeless in the neighborhood of 20,000.

CITIES IN RUINS

Talca and Constitucion are in ruins and the injured without shelter from rain which started today. Efforts were being made to remove the more seriously hurt to this city.

Talca had 50,000 inhabitants. A fifth of these are homeless, there were 168 dead in the city and 93 seriously injured, eight of whom were clinging to life by mere threads.

National subscriptions for relief of the earthquake sufferers were well under way tonight. The Chilean Telephone and Telegraph Company donated 100,000 pesos, about $12,000, to start the drive, which is country-wide.

"But I'll be glad to accommodate him," the Governor added.

The death penalty was imposed on Jaworski on October 22, and under the usual procedure in such cases the Governor waits 45 days after the date of sentence before setting the date of the execution to give the condemned man an opportunity to carry an appeal to the Supreme Court. Next Thursday is the expiration of the period.

SEEK ACTION PRIOR TO RECESS

By EDWARD E. LOCKETT.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Armed with the engineers' report declaring the project feasible, proponents of the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill today drew battle lines to bring the measure speedily to a vote.

With the bitter taste of last session's filibuster still lingering, they served notice that when the Senate settled down to grinding out legislation it would have to grind out Boulder Dam first.

"I shall call it up Wednesday at the latest," Senator Hiram Johnson (R), of California, co-author of the measure, declared today. "Some minor amendments will be necessary from the floor as a result of the engineers' report. However, I expect victory."

ACTION BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Johnson and other supporters hoped to get action on the bill before the Christmas holidays, and clear the Senate calendar for other major legislation.

Equally determined were the opponents of the measure, which would entail the expenditure of more than a hundred million dollars and provide a huge water reservoir for irrigation and power purposes.

Both sides expressed satisfaction with the report of the special board of engineers appointed to examine sites and the feasibility of the dam.

Johnson regarded it as highly favorable. Senator Smoot (R), of Utah, on the other hand, interpreted its suggested revisions as indicating the Swing-Johnson measure was unsound, both economically and from an engineering standpoint. He fought it last session on the grounds the dam was unsafe and too expensive.

OPPONENTS PRIMED

Senator Ashurst (D), of Arizona, who, last summer, led the filibuster against Boulder Dam, has not yet divulged the tactics he will adopt this session in the renewal of his fight against the measure. The group which he heads believes it has enough ammunition to defeat the measure, or at least to block action on it. They indicated a filibuster would not be resorted to unless it was seen the bill would carry in a vote. However, the desks of Ashurst and others were piled high with armfuls of reading matter relating to the project.

Smoot, in a statement, after reading the engineers' report, pointed to an upward revision in the cost estimates of Boulder Dam and to a paragraph declaring present plans for diversion of flood water of the Colorado River during construction imposed undue risk on workers and inhabitants living below in Boulder Canyon.

"The report of this board of engineers sustains and confirms the main criticisms against this project," he said.

WATER POWER REGULATION COLLAPSES

By M. L. RAMSAY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A complete breakdown of governmental regulation of vast hydro-electric power projects, publicly owned and having a value running into hundreds of millions, is pictured in the annual report of the Federal Power Commission just made public.

The power commission is the body charged by law with this regulation. With no staff of its own, and dependent entirely upon a handful of men lent by other departments of the government, carrying out of the duties relating to "protection of the public interest," has been impossible, its report said.

Accordingly, the commission has limited itself almost entirely to issuing licenses for development of latent water power resources, without inquiry into financial plans of developers, cost of construction of their projects or how much they charged to their fixed capital accounts.

VITAL TO "RECAPTURE"

These financial arrangements, the commission emphasized, are "all matters upon which costs to consumers are so largely dependent."

They are also vital to the "recapture" of the hydro-electric plants. The water power act provides that these may be taken over by the government from the private interests which leased the sites and built the plants, at the end of the 50-year license period.

Compensation to the private interests is to be their "net investment" in the plants, an item the commission has found itself unable to determine.

BILLION INVOLVED

Pointing out that projects completed, under construction, or merely licensed involved construction costs of about $1,000,000,000, the commission said:

"Every dollar entered in the fixed capital accounts of a project is a potential public liability, and would become an actual liability in case the project at termination of license should be taken over by the United States, or by any state or municipality. It is of fundamental importance, therefore, that only actual legitimate costs be permitted to be entered on project fixed capital accounts.

"Unless the commission is given an adequate force, it cannot be expected that it can dispose of accumulated work, adequately enforce the law, or properly protect the public interest."

FIRST CHRISTMAS TREES ARRIVE IN PITTSBURGH

Santa Claus' first shipment of Christmas trees for the Pittsburgh district arrived here yesterday when eight cars, including one of fir and seven of spruce, were pulled into the produce yards. The supplies, more of which will arrive later in the week, will continue heavy until a few days before Christmas.

This year the supply shipped here will be much heavier than in previous years. The trees also seem to be of a better quality than in other years.

The arrivals yesterday included two cars from Canada, one from Massachusetts, one from Wisconsin, three from Vermont and one from Washington. The carload from Washington is fir. The others are spruce. There were no balsam trees with the arrivals, but several cars are expected within the next week.

From present indications the price of the trees this year will be somewhat lower than previous years due to the abnormal supply.

TWO PAYROLL ROBBERS GET LONG TERMS

John Otis, 138 Lone way, and Sylvester Mantz, 334 Forty third street, each about 25 years old, convicted in connection with the Castle Shannon and Ward Baking Company payroll robberies, were each sentenced to the Allegheny County Workhouse for a term of 5 to 15 years by Judge Fider W. Marshall in Criminal Court late yesterday.

William Murphy, 14, 18 Thirtieth street, and George Schreiber, 28, 1310 Arch street, escaped with light jail sentences. Both were convicted of conspiracy in the Ward Baking Company robbery, which occurred last April 2, when a bank messenger was held up in Penn avenue near the plant and payrolls estimated at $12,000 were stolen. Murphy was sentenced to jail for four to 18 months, dating from August 18, with release scheduled for December 18. Schreiber, declared by First Assistant District Attorney Andrew Park to have a penitentiary record, got 6 to 18 months in jail, dating from August 18.

William Murray was robbed of $2,400 in payrolls of the Pittsburgh Railways Company at Castle Shannon July 9 last. Otis and Mantz were convicted of this robbery, but Judge Marshall suspended sentence on this conviction, as well as on nearly a score of charges of robbing homes in the Butler street district, to which the two entered pleas of no defense.

WIFE SAYS SWISSVALE MOTHER ALIENATED SON

Mrs. Ella D. Vaughan, of McClure avenue, Swissvale, niece of the late Henry Dennaston, of Swissvale, and a beneficiary under his will, is on trial in Federal Court in an action brought by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. May Reynolds, of Phoenix, Ariz., who charges her with alienating the affections of her husband, Raymond Reynolds. The latter is a son of Mrs. Vaughan by a former marriage.

Damages of $50,000 are sought by the plaintiff, who in her statement of claim, avers that Mrs. Vaughan during 1926 and 1927 contrived to deprive her of her husband and to alienate and destroy his affection. It is further alleged in the statement of claim that Mrs. Vaughan, described as a woman of "large means and great wealth," threatened to disinherit Raymond Reynolds if the couple continued to live together.

In the statement of claim Mrs. Reynolds avers that she and Raymond Reynolds married July 10, 1922, at Los Angeles, Cal., and went to Phoenix, Ariz., where she lived with him in "happiness, concord and harmony" until April 1, 1927. The statement also alleged that Mrs. Vaughan characterized Mrs. Reynolds as a "trap."

Mrs. Reynolds was on the stand when court adjourned. The case is being heard before Judge E. E. Schoonmaker. The late Henry Dennaston, a retired farmer, in 1922 was named defendant in a $50,000 heartbalm suit by Nettie Richardson, a hotelkeeper. Mrs. Vaughan is represented by Attorney William A. Challener and the plaintiff by Attorney Thomas S. Marshall.

TEACHERS TALK WITH BOARD ON WAGES

The proposed salary schedule for teachers in the city schools was discussed yesterday at an informal conference of members of the Board of Education and representatives of the various teaching groups. Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, termed the conference "very satisfactory," saying that a better understanding had been reached and the viewpoints of both teachers and board members brought out.

Dr. Davidson, Marcus Aaron, president of the board, and N. R. Criss, chairman of the board's finance committee, were present, as was Miss Maud Walker, president of the teachers' association.

No official action has been taken by the board on the proposed schedule, which was submitted by a committee of citizens who conducted an investigation of teachers' salaries. The teachers' association is checking the sentiment of its members through a poll.

COOLIDGE URGES INCREASE IN NAVAL STRENGTH

CONGRESS TOLD TO MAINTAIN ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—In what probably will be his valedictory to Congress, President Coolidge today emphasized once more his desire for an increase in America's naval strength, urged a farm relief program which would meet approval of the administration, made suggestions for legislation covering the most important subjects, and ended by declaring the nation was in an era of prosperity and peace such as never before had been experienced.

For farm relief, Mr. Coolidge reiterated his suggestion for the creation of a federal farm board in order that the government might aid in promoting orderly marketing and in handling surpluses clearly due to weather and seasonal conditions. He suggested a revolving fund from government money, until producers associations had erected stabilizing organizations to finance themselves through regular credit institutions.

Talks of Surplus

Temporary expedients, he said, "though sometimes capable of appeasing demands of the moment, cannot permanently solve the surplus problem and might only aggravate it. Hence putting the government directly into business, subsidies and bounties, and the alluring promises of political action as a substitute for private initiative, should be avoided."

Following the lines of his Armistice Day speech, the President's message repeated his desire for passage of the 15-cruiser bill now pending in the Senate.

The bill before the Senate with the elimination of the time clause should be passed," he said, referring to the section which provides that the ships must be laid down within three years.

"I wish to repeat again for the benefits of the timid and the suspicious," said the President, "that this country is neither militaristic nor imperialistic."

Foreign Interests

"Many people at home and abroad, who constantly make this basis, are the same ones who are ever ready to solicit us to lend our financial assistance to foreign countries. When such assistance is granted, the inevitable result is that we have foreign interests, for as to resist the customary support and protection of such interests would be in derogation of the sovereignty of this nation. Our largest foreign interests are in the British Empire, France and Italy. Because we are constantly solicitous for those interests, I doubt if anyone would suppose that those countries feel an harbor toward them any antagonistic or imperialistic design."

"As for smaller countries, we certainly do not want any of them. We are more anxious than they are to have their sovereignty respected. Our whole influence is in behalf of their independence. Cuba stands as a witness to our adherence to this principle."

Opposes Power Plan

The President also reiterated his opposition to putting the government into the power or nitrate business in connection with legislation affecting the Colorado River or Muscle Shoals, of the Colorado River he said a summary of the report of a board appointed to study that project showed it preferred the Black Canyon site. He added that he felt warranted "in recommending a measure which will protect the rights of the states, discharge the necessary government functions, and leave the electrical field to private enterprise."

In connection with Muscle Shoals, President Coolidge suggested a division of the property into "its two component parts of power and nitrate plants" by which it would be possible to "dispose of the power, reserving the right to any concern that wished to make nitrates to use any power that might be needed for that purpose." He opposed building another dam at public expense, saying future operators should provide for that themselves.

"But if they were to be required to repay the cost of such dam, with the prevailing commercial rate of interest, this difficulty will be considerably lessened," he said.

Points to Surplus

Reviewing the efforts of the administration to economize in public expenditures, the President declared that instead of a deficit of $91,000,000 which was expected last June for the current fiscal year, "the combination of economy and good times now indicates a surplus of about $37,000,000." He said, however, that there would be no large enough surplus for further tax reduction.

The question of prohibition was disposed of by Mr. Coolidge in brief form.

"The country has duly adopted the eighteenth amendment," he said. "Those who object to it have the right to advocate its modification or repeal. Meanwhile it is binding upon the national and state governments and all our inhabitants."

As for enforcement he said the federal government "is doing and will continue to do all it can in this direction" and declared that the officials in Washington were entitled to the cooperation of the states.

The flood control, irrigation and domestic water purposes of the Boulder Canyon Dam project are phases into which the government could extend its functions, he said.

Talks of Wages

Addressing himself to the wage earner, Mr. Coolidge enunciated the doctrine of production as the only limit to profit and wages.

"In its economic life," he said, "our country has rejected the long accepted law of a limitation of the wage fund, which led to pessimism and despair because it was the doctrine of perpetual poverty, and has substituted for it the American conception that the only limit to profits and wages is production, which is the doctrine of optimism and hope because it leads to prosperity.

"In the foreign field there is peace, the good will that comes from mutual understanding, and the knowledge that the problems which a short time ago apeared so ominous are yielding to the touch of manifest friendship," he said.

The relations between the United States and Nicaragua, Chili, Peru, Mexico and China were dealt with separately by the President, who also, in his discussion of foreign affairs praised the purport of the Kellogg treaty to outlaw war. There was no mention of American adherence to the World Court.

The message was concluded with a plea to the people to remember that in times of prosperity unremitting toil is necessary to keep what has been gained.

Stresses Peace

"The country," Mr. Coolidge said, "is in the midst of an era of prosperity more extensive and of peace more permanent than it has ever before experienced. But, having reached this position, we should not fail to comprehend that it can easily be lost. It needs more effort for its support than the less exalted places of the world. We shall not be permitted to take our ease, but shall continue to be required to spend our days in unremitting toil.

"The actions of the government must command the confidence of the country. Without this, our prosperity would be lost. We must extend to other countries the largest measure of generosity, moderation and patience. In addition to dealing justly, we can well afford to walk humbly.

"The end of government is to keep open the opportunity for a more abundant life. Peace and prosperity are not finalities; they are only methods. It is too easy under their influence for a nation to become selfish and degenerate. This test has come to the United States. Our country has been provided with the resources with which it can enlarge its intellectual, moral and spiritual life. The issue is in the hands of the people. Our faith in man and God is the justification for the belief in our continuing success."

Hotel Featured Old-Time Bar, Police Say

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—An old-time bar, with brass rail and all other equipment, was disclosed, county detectives said, when they raided the East End Hotel at North Bellevernon. In secret compartments behind a row of fruit shelves they found 10 gallons of whisky and 300 pints of beer, they reported. Mrs. Mary Brenkus, alleged proprietor, was arrested.

Los Angeles Police Close Shubert Revue

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The Shubert revue, "Gay Paree," playing at the Biltmore, a leading Los Angeles theater, was closed by the police last night on the ground that one of its numbers was indecent. Valentine Kennedy, manager of the theater, Frank Gaby, Stanley Rogers and Charlotte Terry were arrested on charges of conducting an indecent show.

Sour Stomach

Just a tasteless dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Hark! Hark, the Lark ..... Schubert

A very good natured audience heard Hulda Lashanska in song recital at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association last evening. The program was short and built entirely of gems in song literature.

Lashanska's voice is of exceedingly pleasant quality, and of good range. Perhaps from cold, perhaps from nervousness, the singer was not consistently in control of her breathing, which marred the high notes. Then there was noticeable, too often, the breaks in registers, which gave the voice almost three-fold character.

But the songs were all great music. Lashanska's ideals for this music seemed always the highest, and when called upon for encores added Strauss' "Zueignung," Grieg's "A Dream," and MacDowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes." Her deepest appreciation was displayed in the more dramatic lyrics, both in Brahms' Beder and the Strauss "Ruhe, Meine Seele," Haydn's "Mermaid's Song" and the "Serenade" suffered from lack of their charming lightness. It was good to hear any music from Tschaikowsky's "Pique Dame," an opera replete with beautiful airs.

Grace Marshall was a steady prop for the singer. Her accompaniments were necessarily very carefully planned.

HERITAGE
Heaven's Greatest Gift to Humanity
Depends Upon the Preservation of Your Blood-Cells

I WANT to tell every young man what his father should have told him in his youth—what every young man and father ought to know. No sadder spectacle ever comes to my attention than a young man whose body and mind are infected with disease. He is handicapped all through life. The strong, robust man with pure blood cells passes him at every turn in the race of life. Thousands of these cases should never have been. An ounce of prevention would have kept this young man of today and the father of tomorrow in the bloom of health, strength and vigor. Failure is as certain to follow a weakened and diseased mind as day will follow night. Don't you believe the great men of today, of yesterday, performed every private and public duty fearlessly and earnestly? Then why should you not guard your heritage when it is worth more to you, more to your children and your great-grandchildren than all the money you make or possess? Your success depends upon your health and determination. All these things being true, lend me your confidence and I will give you a clean blood stream; then if you do not succeed it is your own fault. False pride and modesty have stood between thousands of men and women, robbing them of all the sweets of life, success and happiness. You can cage the monkey and pen the goats. They cannot produce blood cells if you had a hundred glands sewed into you.

We live in an age when all mankind should become interested in health matters, not because we love money, not because we love life for ourselves, but for the preservation of our own blood cells. Men may cry, Peace! Peace! but there is no peace of mind or body when the blood has been infected. A bullet kills only the man it hits. Infection destroys his poor wife and children and their children's children. Today money counts; tomorrow blood cells will win the race and the great heritage of our ancestors will count for more than hoarded millions. You cannot make laws to prevent degeneracy, but you can create laboratories that will teach our children the name of every infectious germ and the suffering it will cause. Then watch your divorce courts, asylums and penitentiaries. We inflict punishment for the sins of others and call it justice, and only can justice be obtained where wisdom and knowledge exist.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Plans Made to Entertain School Set During Yule Holidays

WE are beginning to hear a little about some of the entertaining that is to be done during the holidays for the girls and boys who will be home, then, for Christmas. As I have said before, the debutante will have to share some of the spotlight with these other young people at that time—although she won't be neglected, exactly, either. Scarcely another party could be crowded into her program, so she won't mind how many affairs are given for the school group.

One of the girls who will be home from school then is Rita Borntrager, who is a pupil at Garrison Forest, you know. Rita is the daughter of the Earl H. Borntragers, of South Dallywood avenue, and her parents expect her home about December 15. I understand Mr. and Mrs. Borntrager, perhaps will entertain for Rita while she is at home.

And, by the way, Mrs. Borntrager, herself, arrived home just yesterday after being away almost continuously since last June. The Borntragers spent the summer at their home on Underwood Island, at Beaumaris, of course, and they returned to Pittsburgh late in September. Then about a fortnight later Mrs. Borntrager went down to Washington to visit her sister, Mrs. James Elwood Jones, and she took several short trips with the Jones family.

DID you see the Stage and Play Society's performance last night? If you didn't, you missed something really worth while, for "The Man of Destiny" alone is a play of real depth, you know, and the two others were given, Bourdet's "The Adorable Woman's" and "Caleb Stone's Death Watch."

In the Shaw play, the part of Napoleon was taken by Alan Donnelly. This was Mr. Donnelly's first appearance with the society, and he made quite a hit in his characterization of the little corporal. Mrs. Howard J. Burgwin, who also made her debut with the society last night, had the only feminine role in the play, and the other parts were taken by C. F. C. Arensberg and Chester D. Shepard. The prologue was read by George Pearson, and the play was directed by Mrs. John H. K. Burgwin. Mrs. Arensberg "held the book."

Only two actors were needed for "The Adorable Woman," and the roles were taken by Mrs. Thomas Hilliard and Rodman McClintock. Mrs. Haines Allen Machesney was the director.

Then the final play of the evening was Martin Flavin's "Caleb Stone's Death Watch," centered about the greedy family of a dying man, dividing his fortune even before death takes him. In the cast were Mrs. George Pearson, Mary Barbara Shiras, Margaret Elliott, Andy Watt, M. L. Carter, Jr., Reginald Rinehart Church, John B. McCormick, Howard G. Wilbert and Alfred E. Smith, with James W. Macfarlane directing.

February 7 is the date for the next performance. Carrol Fitzhugh, the president, will be back from Europe by that time, and I understand that the plans are, now, to present one of his own plays.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby is chairman of the play producing committee—has been, in fact, for the last three years—and Mrs. Machesney is in charge of the sets.

THE Women's Exchange sale here in town is always an important event of the season—but the winter wouldn't be complete without the Christmas sale in Sewickley. The Exchange plans to hold this sale next Tuesday from 11 to 6 o'clock in the Edgeworth Club, with Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., as chairman.

All the interesting departments will be represented, including the handwork, children's clothes, traveling accessories, lamps, painted boxes, trays, card tables and wax flowers.

THE marriage of Miss Abigail Alden Guthrie, daughter of Speer W. Guthrie, of Indiana, Pa., and Robert W. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, of Greensburg, was solemnized Saturday at 4:30 o'clock in the Guthrie home by the Rev. Henry B. Strock, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensburg. Only the families and a few friends were in attendance. The bride wore a gown of old ivory satin and her tulle veil was arranged in cap effect held by rose point and Brussels lace. She carried gardenias and Ascension lilies. Mrs. E. F. Ebberts, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Joseph S. Bair, of Greensburg, as matrons of honor, appeared in plum-colored satin with hats to match, and their flowers were roses and snapdragons. The flower girls were Carolyn Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Guthrie, of Phillipsburg, N. J., and Mary Agnes Pollock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Pollock, of Indiana, wearing frocks of green organdie and carrying Colonial bouquets. Isabelle Burns Guthrie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Guthrie, of Cincinnati, was ring bearer. George W. Potts was best man, and the ushers included Walter P. Guthrie and Joseph S. Bair, Jr. A supper and reception followed the ceremony at the Indiana Country Club. After a trip, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will live in Greensburg.

THE betrothal of Miss Sara Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Long, of Edwood avenue, Mt. Lebanon, and Herman Bartenbach, of the city, was announced last Thursday night at the Long home by the Rev. Dr. J. Vernon Wright. The bride wore a brilliant gown of white satin and chantilly lace and carried a shower of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Emma Long, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in pale yellow chiffon and carried yellow tea roses. Her cousins, Miss Eunan Milligan, played the wedding music and Miss Esther Edmundson sang. Louis H. Bachi was best man. A reception and supper followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bartenbach will be at home in Beechwood Boulevard after their return from a cruise to the West Indies.

Press Club Hears Of European Travel

WITH a most hilarious enthusiasm, Mrs. George Pearson spoke before the Women's Press Club yesterday noon of the delights and beauties of her year in Europe. Mrs. Pearson gave her impressions of a trip that was away from the beaten track in a manner all the more delightful because of its informality and its very personal note. The sight of much drinking and drunkenness in England and Scotland led her to believe that the prohibition law in this country is a good thing, she observed. She especially studied the schools in England and wondered if they, with their difference in system, their lack of luxury and their inclusion of religion, were responsible for the prevalence of good grammar. The restraint and quiet of the English people was noted even when everybody turned out for the trooping of the colors on the King's birthday. Of Queen Mary, Mrs. Pearson remarked, "In spite of her funny hat and her ankle-length skirts, she looks a queen." Armistice Day in black-bannered Munich was another fine bit thrillingly told by the speaker. Speaking of Paris, Mrs. Pearson commented on "the volatile, fascinating, fanciful, crybaby nation," saying she heard more complaints, especially against the United States, in France than in any other country.

AN almost incredible tale of adventure, hardship, danger and thrills was presented before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning by Dr. William McGovern. To illustrate Dr. McGovern, who is now with the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, showed motion pictures of Tibet, many of which he had taken in Lhasa, the forbidden city, while virtually a prisoner. He had made his way there under almost unbearable conditions, described as a credit, second to his own servant. Much concerning the little known land was revealed by Dr. McGovern. You must eat it frozen and thawed over and over again, and it is tender, barley and tea that have been boiled with butter, soda and salt, are the staples in Tibet, he said, and the older the butter, the more palatable it is considered. He was even shown butter that was said to be 40 years old. The use of tobacco is considered a great deal more than homicide. And in this land where every third man is a monk, they are continually warring. The Tibetans are the dirtiest people in the world, for they never wash, Dr. McGovern stated, adding that in a country where the temperature is 50 degrees below zero a layer of dirt is an asset.

WALTER PRITCHARD EATON speaking on current plays delighted the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. Two tendencies in modern drama—the avoidance of all suspicion of sentiment and of anything refined, were especially noted by Mr. Eaton. He described "The Front Page" as "very much hard boiled, not realistic, but an exciting melodrama." O'Neill's latest play, "Dynamo," which is not yet produced, was said to bring out a possible need for a new religion in a machine age. Milne's "Perfect Alibi" and several revivals, among them Eva La Gallienne's performance of "Peter Pan" were commented upon.

REINDICTMENT OF RUM PROBE 44 URGED

United States Attorney John D. Meyer today is expected to receive copies of resolutions adopted by the National Reform Association in session here, in which he is asked to reindict the 44 defendants in the recent rum ring conspiracy trials. The resolutions were adopted yesterday upon recommendation of the president, the Rev. R. H. Martin.

The recommendations of Rev. Martin were based upon the statement of Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, who presided at the trial. The Judge, in dismissing the charges against the defendants, said that while there was not evidence of a general conspiracy there was indication that a number of small conspiracies existed.

Six moves to better prohibition enforcement were advocated by J. M. Dickason at a session yesterday afternoon. They were: To deprive violators of citizenship; deport alien violators; make purchasers equally guilty with sellers; punish all violators with fines and imprisonment, and change the wording of the Volstead act to read "alcoholic" instead of "intoxicating."

Changes in Listing Of Trials Favored

Recommendations of changes in the method of listing trials in civil and criminal courts here will be made at the meeting of the Allegheny County Bar Association Friday evening in the Union Club. Many other reports will be made by the various committees of the association. The committee on biography and history will present memorials and minutes upon 14 deceased members of the bar.

HEALTH FOUND IN FRUIT COCKTAIL

Simply made with these four fruits—and sugar to taste

This simple fruit cocktail will bring enjoyment and health to your table: Sections of grapefruit, of orange, of pineapple and bananas—with the addition of granulated or powdered sugar to taste. The dissolving of the sugar blends the flavors of the various fruits and adds to them sweetness—nature's perfect flavor.

One of the main purposes of cookery—one often lost sight of in these days of extreme diets—is to add to the zest and enjoyment of foods. And there is no other ingredient so useful in making other healthful foods gracious to the palate as sugar. The good cook, by the judicious use of sugar, makes all kinds of fresh fruits, vegetables and meats tasteful and delicious.

We spoke above of extreme diets. More than that, they are dangerous to health. Eminent medical authorities are alarmed at the semi-starvation reducing diets. Extreme reducing removes the protecting fat that nature intends everybody should have. It tends to destroy the protection against disease. It very often causes permanent injuries to the most delicate organs and tissues.

One of the first laws of health is to eat enough. Diet sensibly. You can't neglect eating and keep well. The Sugar Institute.

Drys Watch Liquor Carried Into House

While a squad of prohibition agents were seated in their automobile, the front bumper of which touched the rear of the automobile of Morris Wolf, of 1308 Colwell street, Wolf is alleged to have carried two cases of liquor from the house into the automobile. The car was seized, Wolf arrested and a raid on the house followed. Whisky and alcohol valued at $2,000 was seized in the place, raiders said. Wolf was released on a $1,000 bail bond.

Fredrico Earlori, 45, was arrested in a store at 71 Washington street, where moonshine was found, according to the agents.

Darrow to Defend Brophy and Toohey

Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays, of the defense counsel for Thomas Scopes in the famed Kentucky evolution fight, are to defend John Brophy and Patrick Toohey, leaders of insurgent striking miners here, when the two are called for trial December 18, it was announced by the American Civil Liberties Union. Brophy and Toohey were arrested March 8 when state police broke up a miners' meeting at Renton. The two were charged with unlawful assembly and inciting to riot. The indictment against the pair charges them with rioting.

2 MEN FOR JOB, NEW PUZZLE FOR KLINE

Mayor Charles H. Kline today faces the necessity of providing pay for two men for six months' employment at the same position rated at $146.50 a month.

A. F. Nolan, 240 Brereton avenue, Second Ward, was dismissed last May as an inspector in the division of weights and measures by Murray G. Livingston, chief inspector, although the job comes under the personal supervision of the Mayor. Nolan's name was omitted from subsequent payrolls.

A little later Mayor Kline gave the job to George Myers, of the Thirteenth Ward, but the Civil Service Commission refused to approve his pay because it had not been advised officially that a vacancy existed.

Nolan submitted to Mayor Kline and to Livingston a written protest against his dismissal and demanded a reply stating charges against him. None was forthcoming other than the "good of the service" phrase used at the time of his dismissal.

Finally a hearing was granted Nolan before the Civil Service Commission last Wednesday. Livingston testified that Nolan was dismissed on orders from Mayor Kline after Nolan failed to influence a relative, Mrs. Henrietta Caldwell, a Second Ward committeewoman, to vote for Owen McManus in the latter's succesful fight with Pat O'Malley for the Republican chairmanship of the ward. Livingston also testified Nolan was efficient, except for being a little deaf.

The commission advised Mayor Kline yesterday that Nolan should be reinstated. Replying to a question later, the Mayor said Nolan would have to be returned to his job.

Meantime, neither Nolan nor Myers has been paid for six months.

Under the ruling of the commission it was assumed that Nolan was entitled to full pay because his dismissal was never authorized.

Asked about Myers' pay, Mayor Kline indicated Council might find a solution.

Thinks 'Flappers' Know Their Politics

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, told the Constitutional Club yesterday that the general election probably would be held next July. He said that he did not believe the new "flapper vote" would hurt the Conservative party, or that the young women would vote the Socialist ticket.

"The young woman of today is no fool," he said. "The girl of 22 knows more about politics than did the woman of 50 a generation ago."

Michigan Student Turns on Gas, Dies

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—George Raymond, 24, of Olivet, Mich., a graduate student at Brown University, committed suicide this morning by inhaling illuminating gas in a rooming house. No reason was advanced. His body was found by a fellow student. Physicians worked over the body an hour in an effort to revive him. He graduated from a university in Michigan last June and entered Brown for post-graduate work this fall.

CONSTANT CURLING MAKES A WOMAN'S HAIR BAD

TOUCHING UP GRAY DISAPPOINTING TOO

If one's hair has become thin and bad with constant curling, waving, permanents, or from other causes, and the gray hairs have turned ugly shades, ever darker with doctoring and tinting, it is time to quit a few days and give the hair roots, pigment glands and scalp a good vigorous massaging with the finger tips, dipped in a saucer of Lea's Hair Tonic.

Right away the scalp takes on a healthier tone—dandruff, if any, vanishes, and between massaging and the Lea's the hair grows out new and thicker and, strange as it may appear, just by rubbing Lea's into the scalp one begins noticing the gray hair resuming its natural shade of auburn, red, black or blonde as your case may be—nature seems to get back on the job of putting pigment and color into the off-colored locks, dull, faded patches and even locks that have been gray for years. It isn't a shocking change to astonish friends. Experts cannot detect its use, and, of course, patience and its nightly use for a couple of weeks is required, after which an application and thorough massaging twice a month more or less seems to keep nature up on her toes. Doesn't stain. Shampoo often as desired, then wave, curl, marcel or get a permanent and results are simply wonderful. Empirical tests in several thousand cases prove it can be steadily used year after year with unvarying results and success. To test, apply to hidden spot the size of a silver dollar a couple weeks and watch results. Lots of beauty shops buy Lea's Hair Tonic and apply under various names of their own, each day for three weeks and occasionally thereafter for reasonable fees, or ask for Lea's Hair Tonic at your druggist or send dollar bill to Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. Bottle and directions, return mail.

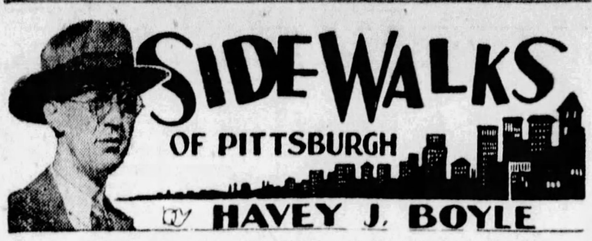
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1928



PERSONS who know say the Pittsburgh Symphony is fine. That is the orchestra, whose Sunday night programs, caused a court case in which many notable citizens subjected themselves to arrest on behalf of a principle. Some of the wealthiest folk in town fought for the right to spend their money to subsidize an orchestra so that persons of less means, musically inclined, might hear good music on a Sunday night. As a result of a favorable court decision the concerts continue.

Your correspondent, who doesn't know good music, went to the concert last Sunday night and enjoyed the experience. There is this to be said on behalf of good music—the parts you don't understand or appreciate give you time to get caught up on your thinking.

* * *

ANYONE who saw us close our eyes thought that a composer named Tschaikowsky had reached our soul, but the fact of the matter was that we took that occasion to polish off a situation in the second act of our play which will be known as "Love's Embers," or something like that. This play is about a fellow and a girl . . . but never mind, we must get back to the concert.

* * *

The Syria Mosque, wherein the concert was staged, is the largest hall in town and it was packed to the rafters. In fact, the crowd was so large that a few of us had difficulties reaching the carriage-starter after the performance was over.

IT WAS during Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 3 in E. Minor, Op. 65 (not Op 64 as you might have imagined) that we enjoyed the most. It was during that number that we convinced ourself if we hadn't gone into four spades, and had gone back to our partner's minor suit bid that the game on the previous afternoon might not have ended so disastrously.

Other parts that were entertaining were selections which indicated a similarity to some of the popular songs. It is from these high class pieces that the song writers borrow now and then. "Yes, We Have No Bananas," and "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," experts will tell you, are descendants from aristocratic grandfathers in the musical realm.

THOSE who didn't appreciate the program were in the minority as the applause that greeted every number was deafening. That many Frenchmen can't be wrong.

It was an attentive, appreciative audience that warmed the hearts of the energetic conductor, Elias Breeskin, and his fellow-musicians with thunderous acclaim.

How does Mr. Breeskin remember when to look expectantly at the wood-winds or how to stretch a graceful finger in the direction of the drums?

Our enjoyment was from the ocular rather than through the auricle.

AND although it's all over our head we're for the Sunday concerts because so many persons get fine amusement from them. And maybe some day we'll get to like good music almost as much as does the dear lady beside us who was qualifying for nothing worse than runner-up in the dropping-the-pocketbook-and-program-event staged at all concerts and theatrical performances.

ROBBER GANG SUSPECT IS NABBED

Smoke coming out of a chimney from a shanty in a hollow leading off of Penelope street, Mt. Washington, overlooking Seldom Scene, resulted in the capture of one member of a notorious gang of thieves, who have been operating in the South Hills district for more than a year, Mt. Washington police believe.

Patrolmen George Schmotzer and John Elliott, scouring their district for thieves responsible for numerour complaints, noticed the smoke from the chimney and made their way down a narrow rugged road leading to the shed. After searching the premises, police say, they found Clifton Schopp, 21, no home, sleeping on a cot. Two flashlights and a jimmy bar were also found.

When placed under arrest on a charge of being a suspicious person, Schoff admitted to police that he has passed two checks which he had forged. He was identified, police say, by Gust Seretakis, proprietor of the Shiloh Lunchroom, 217 Shiloh street, who claimed that he cashed a $17 check on November 17, when he purchased a $5 meal ticket. The check was made out to Clifford Brooks, an alias of Schopp, and was signed M. J. Lummick. He was also identified by an official of a South Side bank, who cashed a $15 check which was also signed M. J. Lummick.

MILLINERY STORE FIRE REVIVED

An application for permission to appeal from the decision of the Superior Court, which sustained the lower court, has been taken in the case of Harry Frank and Meyer Letwin, convicted of arson in an attempt to set fire to a millinery store at 435 East Ohio street in July, 1927.

It was alleged that the court erred because of the manner in which the jury was discharged in the first trial of the case, the jury having been unable to agree. Judge J. Frank Goff, of Armstrong county, heard the case and after the jury retired he went home. He left the jury in the hands of Judge James R. Macfarlane.

On Sunday, December 17, last, Crier James A. Steel notified the court the jury was unable to agree; that several members of the jury were ill, and Judge Macfarlane ordered their dismissal and proper record made Monday. Counsel claim this action was an acquittal and that the defendants should have been freed. At the second trial the defendants were convicted, the court instructing the jury to bring in a verdict for the commonwealth, as to the acquittal point raised by the defense. The defendants were sentenced to not less than six years nor more than 12 in the penitentiary.

According to the Mt. Washington police, the boy was playing with a companion on the sidewalk, when he dashed out on the street directly in front of the automobile. Morrow took the boy to the office of a nearby physician who ordered him removed to the hospital.

Takes Post With Pittsburgh Church

Mrs. Louise Reel, of West View, for many years superintendent of the junior department, Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, has been chosen director of religious education of the Second Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. She will assume her new duties March 1.

VET DREAMS OF SON AS GREAT WARRIOR

German gas in his lungs and a Turkish bayonet scar in his right knee is not going to stop one Irish soldier of fortune from raising one of his offspring to be a soldier. As a professional soldier, this warrior has braved war's infernal machinations on a dozen battlefields of the world.

In fact, Thomas Morrissey, ex-warrant officer of the British Imperial Army, who came to America because he preferred life to facing a firing squad and is now living with his wife and three children at 1 Coulter street, Crafton, secretly hopes that his youngest son may some day become a famous warrior. For the time being, Herbert Hoover Morrissey, 5 months old, prefers a rattle to a gun and a baby carriage to an armored tank, while his father dreams of addressing him some day as Gen. Herbert Hoover Morrissey of the United States Army.

SETTLING DOWN

After 10 years of globe-trotting and soldiering in Egypt, Russia, Asia Minor, France, Ireland, Greece and Turkey, Morrissey wants to settle down and make a home for his wife who has shared some of his world travels. Working as an elevator repairman in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station may not have the fascination of strange and exotic countries, or the lure of a carefree soldier's life, but Morrissey is resigned to spending the remainder of his life in Pittsburgh, just to give his children an opportunity for education. Varsy, a girl, 8 years old, and John, 7, are already in school.

The story of his romance with his Armenian wife goes back to the time of his service with the British Army of Occupation in Constantinople. She was then a teacher at Robert College, an American institution.

Back in old Erin after their marriage Morrissey obtained an honorable discharge from the service and became a court martial clerk for the British forces in Cork. Irish revolutionaries looked with scorn upon their fellow-citizen who was earning his shekels from their oppressors. They sentenced him to death. He preferred to emigrate to America to picking his own coffin.

Morrissey is now receiving a life pension from the British government. He is the proud possessor of several service medals. Herbert Hoover plays with them as the children of other mortals play with rattles and other playthings.

TIME EXTENDED FOR BUILDING BRIDGE

Allegheny County is given two years in which to begin construction of the proposed McKees Rocks-North Side bridge and two years additional to complete it under provisions of a bill introduced in Congress yesterday by Rep. Stephen G. Porter, according to Washington dispatches. The periods start from the date of approval by the President.

The bridge was authorized in the people's bond issue of last June, the sum of $6,885,000 being set aside for the purpose. Congressman Porter disclosed that the War Department engineers finally have approved the county's plans for the bridge which is to be the costliest in Allegheny County. It will connect with the proposed Ohio River boulevard.

Authority for constructing the bridge was first granted by Congress in 1919, but work was delayed giving rise to the necessity for extensions from time to time.

Explaining the necessity for the legislation, Representative Porter said:

"In 1919 I introduced a bill giving the consent of the Congress to the construction of a bridge across Ohio River between the North Side, Pittsburgh, and McKees Rocks borough. The bill became a law on February 27, 1919. The act required construction to begin within two years. The United States engineers and Allegheny county were unable to agree upon plans for the bridge within the time specified and in 1920, I introduced a bill which became a law, extending the time for commencement a further period of two years.

"I am now informed by the Commissioners of Allegheny county that an agreement has been reached with the federal authorities with respect to the plans.

"The bill which I introduced yesterday again extends the time for commencing and completing the construction of the bridge two and four years, respectively, from date of approval by the President."

Failed to Supply Fuel, Wife Says, Asks Divorce

Margaret L. Barcroft, Western avenue, Emsworth, claims that she had to go to bed to keep herself and her baby warm, in a bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court, in giving reasons for wanting a divorce from John Francis Barcroft. The latter is said to be in Lawrenceville, Ill.

Mrs. Barcroft, among other things, claims that her husband drank intoxicating liquors to excess, and on one occasion when she went with him to a restaurant he had to be assisted to his automobile. She claims that he did not provide sufficient fuel to keep herself and child warm, and that when he was drunk he kicked her.

2 ARRESTED IN WIRE THEFT

Michael Hrynda, 19, and his brother, Milton Hrynda, 17, 1000 Freyburg street, South Side, arrested in their home accused of stealing 200 pounds of copper wire and an automobile tire from an abandoned signal tower on the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's property, at the head of South Tenth street, were held over for further investigation by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court.

According to Precinct Detective John Harkins of the South Side station and Pennsylvania Railroad Detective F. Pidgeon, the arresting officers, the wire and the tire was found in the attic of the brothers' home. They have admitted that "some one" gave it to them, according to the police, and also said that they have sold some of the wire to a junk dealer. Magistrate Brandon held them for further investigation until the officers endeavor to find trace of the buyer of the stolen goods.

Police say that the wire was over 600 feet long and it required five laborers of the railroad company to remove it from the attic.

BROKEN MAIN FLOODS STREET

South Side streets were flooded Sunday when an automobile truck, driven by Steve Kozakowsky, 36, Lincoln place, struck a fire water-plug on the corner of South Eighteenth and Sarah streets, breaking it off at the base. Street cars and automobile traffic were delayed for a short time, when employes of the Department of Highways and Sewers shut off the water pressure.

According to the South Side police, Kozakowsky was driving his truck on Sarah street, when an automobile driven by John M. Meyers, 17, 207 St. Thomas street, southbound on South Eighteenth street, collided with the truck. Kozakowsky swerved his truck in order to avoid being hit, struck the fire-plug. Both drivers were arrested by Emergency Patrolman William Seibert and lodged in the South Side Station on a charge of reckless driving.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.

Congress has opened. It's called the lame duck session. A lame duck is a politician who is still alive, but the government paymaster has notified him that he will become totally disabled on March 4.

The first session was very congenial. They met, prayed, and adjourned. But wait till the Boulder Dam bill comes up.

Then the city of Washington will get a shock to its national pride. They will find that the power lobby didn't just settle there on account of the beauty of that charming city. We shall soon discover the susceptible.

Yours, WILL.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

A PORTRAYAL of the life of Napoleon, "the little corporal," and a condensed version of "Pirates of Penzance" are two features on the air tonight.

From WJAS at 11 o'clock the Nocturnal Imps will give a request program. Margaretta Condon, pianist, is starred on this concert along with her singing companion, Maxine Kohler. Earlier in the evening, at 8:30 o'clock, this station will introduce a singer new to its audience, but one very familiar to radio fans of Pittsburgh—Miss Delphine Heimert, soprano.

A "barn dance" will be given from KQV at 8:30 p. m. Fiddlers and an accordion artist will take part.

WJAS GETTING READY

With most of the new power equipment installed at WJAS this station will soon be ready for its test on 1,000 watts. Fans have been disappointed many times with announced intentions of going on the air with higher power so we hesitate to predict when you may tune in on new WJAS. Howard Clark, manager, has promised to make an announcement.

Complaints of the WCAE wave length assignment continued to flow into the station and the Sun-Telegraph over the weekend. Some of these letters were forwarded to the Federal Radio Commission. The others will be taken to Washington on Friday, the date set for the hearing.

While no definite announcement has been made, it is believed that Mrs. Frances Doherr, manager at WCAE, will be one of the star witnesses for the station. If she goes before the Radio Board it will be the first time in the history of radio that a woman station manager has carried a complaint to Washington. Mrs. Doherr is one of the few woman station managers in the United States and it may be said that she is the only woman station manager who exercises the authority vested in her title.

8:00 P. M.—Wanda Schaeffer, soprano; Lelia Wilson Smith, accompanist; Charles Wilson, pianist.
8:30 P. M.—Harriet Werle, pianist; Delphine Heimert, soprano.
9:00 P. M.—United Light Opera: "Pirates of Penzance."

The entire scene of "The Pirates of Penzance" is laid on the coast of Cornwall. Frederic, apprenticed when a child to the pirates of Penzance, falls in love with Mabel, the youngest daughter of Gen. Stanley, who has brought all his daughters to the rocky coast on an outing. At first his fair charges are loathe to have him, because he was born in leap year, his actual age is 5 years instead of 20, and he is therefore bound to the pirates for 10 more years. In the end, however, the pirates are captured by the policemen and only pardoned on their promise to give up piracy as a career. This releases Frederic, who is therefore free to marry Mabel.

10:00 P. M.—Hank Simmons' Show Boat: "Tempest and Sunshine," a comedy drama in three acts.

Tempest and Sunshine are two sisters, christened so because of their dispositions, their real names being Julia and Fanny Middleton. Julia is always trying to show her superiority to Fanny, and, in order to do so, is willing to stop at no means, fair or foul. The situation reaches its climax when Julia, jealous of Fanny's lover, attempts to steal him away. In order to do this she connives with the postoffice clerk to intercept Fanny's mail and, all in all, almost succeeds in breaking up a perfectly happy relationship. In the end, however, Julia, the guilty one, is struck by lightning, and Fanny is therefore in a position to marry her man and lead a happy, peaceful life.

RAINBOW CHASING

BY THOMAS · EDGELOW

Madge Is Greatly Thrilled in Being Secretly Engaged To Carroll Dudley

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayre, young and pretty, awakens on the morning of her twenty-first birthday resenting the dingy New York apartment she shares with her father, an unsuccessful inventor. Madge craves thrills and unexpectedly finds one when she attends a party given by her friend, Frances Storrs. It is in the person of Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Carroll is impressed with Madge's youthful beauty and tells her he had been waiting to meet her all his life. Meanwhile the party becomes wilder and Carroll and Madge retire to a balcony, escaping the heightening orgy. Carroll offers to drive Madge to his place on Long Island, proposing an airplane ride for a thrill. Leaving the party they stop at Madge's house when a taxi pulls up. Friends are lifting out the almost unconscious Mr. Sayre, a victim of alcohol. A week later Madge dines with Carroll at his luxurious studio apartment. After dinner they drive out to Long Island and Madge has her first thrill in an airplane when the engine stalls in mid-air and plunges toward the earth. After this near-experience with death Madge is supremely happy. Life is more intoxicating. Meanwhile Frances Storrs warns Madge of Dudley, who is now urging her to pose for him. Feeling that she is mistress of any situation she poses in his studio.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THAT moment passed, as must all moments of supreme happiness, without the consciousness of time, and then Madge found herself sitting on a couch, with Carroll beside her.

She surveyed him through eyes that misted with tenderness. Now he was her Carroll! Hers for all time. And, as suddenly as this joy swelled up in her heart, it died away as she remembered her father, becoming more and more helpless and who, it seemed, would soon depend upon her even for financial aid.

Carroll noticed her expression. "What's the matter, dear," he said quickly.

Madge's hand involuntarily went out to caress his hair.

"It's my father," Madge confessed. "He needs me so, Carroll—so—how could we be married until I have found some solution for him?"

"That is a bit of a problem, isn't it?" he said slowly, as he got up and paced the big room.

Madge could not know what was going on within his mind. Marriage! Well, she was pretty enough to drive a man insane. But marriage! Some of these modern girls were as old-fashioned basically as their grandmothers.

Meanwhile, Madge, who loved him, felt a rising chill. Why had he not instantly told her that her problems were his?

CHAPTER VI.

A QUIRKING doubt had crept up in the Madge's heart as Carroll paced the floor after she told him of her fears for her father; but it vanished a moment later when he returned and sat beside her on the couch.

"Ecstasy!" he said devotedly, as though he had read her very thoughts. "I don't want you to think about your father except to be happy about him. Why can't we share him?"

Her eyes dimmed with tenderness.

"If only one of his mad financial schemes could materialize," she sighed.

"Well, it is partly because of that," Carroll put in as he took both Madge's hands in his and kissed them, "that we will have to keep our engagement secret until the fall. You see, I make quite a decent income from my portraits, but—it's no good lying about it—I always spend a little more than I make."

"You would!" Madge laughed at him. "I can't quite see the 'flying painter' economizing."

"That's just it." He smiled back. "I have fortunately, a rich old-maid aunt, who adores me and at the same time disapproves of me. I have to watch my step with her. Aunt Elizabeth is in Europe now. She returns early in September, and if she heard that I was engaged—wow! Would there be a cyclone!"

"It isn't that she won't have me marry," he hurried on. "The thing is that she would be furious that I had gotten engaged without asking her advice. She is going to leave me a lot of money, and we live in a practical world, my darling. So you won't mind keeping it perfectly quiet until Aunt Elizabeth gets back?"

As a matter of fact, this enforced secrecy but added to the romance of her engagement, Madge thought.

"Of course, I don't mind! Why, it's going to be loads of fun, Carroll!" Madge enthused. "We won't tell a soul, and it will be a secret between us, just as this study you are making of me shall be another secret bond between us."

"You are so sweet!" he whispered, and again Madge knew the rapture of his kisses. But when, carried away by the emotion of the moment, he grew too bold with his caresses, she shyly moved away from him, drawing the velvet wrap close about her.

"Won't you pose again?" he begged, "I will forget the lover in the artist."

So until the light failed she posed, although with frequent pauses for rest. Then, snugly draped in her velvet cloak, Madge talked with Carroll about their wondrous future. There were interludes for blissful kisses, and the time raced.

"I will go and dress," Madge said, soon after five.

"I have a business appointment with a man who handles a lot of my stuff," Carroll told her. "But why can't I come around to your place about seven or half-past, and pick you up for dinner?"

Madge agreed.

As she went up the little staircase, her thoughts flew back to her hesitation and fears as she had come down them only a few hours before. How absurd had been her doubts! Of course, she had been right to trust Carroll—now her Carroll for all time!

She was entirely happy as she dressed, and the reflection in the big mirror added to her joy. She was glad that so much beauty was hers, for was it not all for Carroll? She would dower him with her beauty—her Carroll!

Blithely, she came down again to the studio. But already the man whom Carroll had expected had arrived, and they were talking business. Madge noted that Carroll had kept his word, and his canvas—their canvas—was nowhere in sight.

Carroll followed her out into the entrance hall.

"I will call for you at half-past seven," he whispered. "Please be very careful of my darling!"

She clung to him, and he kissed her. Then she hurried out.

She had not been five minutes in the apartment when the bell rang, and to her intense annoyance, Madge found that Dick Leeds, again ignoring her request that he telephone before calling, had come to see her.

"I have news for you, Madge," he beamed. "My mother is putting up capital for me to buy a partnership in the firm of interior decorators where I have been studying."

"Splendid!" Madge congratulated him, absently.

"Do you see what that means?" Dick went on eagerly. "It means I can save you from all this," and his gesture included the shabby furniture, the small room and the dingy street. "I shall be independent, financially, of my mother, so there is no reason why we can't be married at once."

Madge could hardly believe her ears. This smug, conceited little man taking it for granted that she would accept him despite all her snubs! Because of her secret engagement to Carroll, Dick's proposal seemed funny, but she wanted to spank him for his absurdity. So smiling acidly, she said:

"It is a wonderful chance for me, isn't it, Dick? Only one thing that I can see against it—and that is that if I were going to marry, I would pick a real man."

And when he had left, crushed, Madge felt she could not wait until dinner to tell Carroll the joke.

She went to her telephone and called his number. Then she found that she had been cut in on Carroll's busy line. She heard a woman saying:

"You always were a prince among cads, Carroll."

And Carroll answered:

"Now, can't you be reasonable?"

Then the voices were suddenly replaced by the buzzing signal of a busy line.

She sank to a chair.

Carroll . . . her Carroll . . . and a woman! "Prince among cads!" "Be reasonable!" Her Carroll . . .

But was this her love? What a pitiable thing! To wilt and crumple at the first doubt!

She threw off her depression and dressed for dinner. Should she tell Carroll what she had overheard? She decided that she would say nothing, but when Carroll arrived and took her in his arms, she could not banish the memory of what she had heard. All that was honest in her insisted on clarifying the situation. She could not thrill to his kisses while her heart was burning with doubts.

"What's the matter, darling?" Carroll asked when she pushed him away.

"Oh nothing!" she replied almost sobbing. "Nothing except that I telephoned you—at the wrong moment!"

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"Why are you a 'prince among cads,' and who were you begging to be reasonable?"

Tears drowned Madge's blue eyes. She sat down, burying her head in her arms, sobs convulsed her.

"Was that all you heard?" he demanded with studied smoothness.

"W-wasn't it enough?" she questioned tearfully.

"Darling," he told her tenderly, "I wish you had heard the whole conversation. Ever so many tears would have been saved."

"Oh, I suppose you've got a wonderful explanation," Madge retorted, but her love was flooding back at the hope he held out.

"I don't know if it's wonderful," he said firmly. It is just the truth. There is a fearsome female whose portrait I did. I let go and made it like her; she has a face like a carved Indian. She refused to pay for it. Then I was ass enough to lend it to her. . . . That was months ago, and I have been trying to recover either my canvas or the five thousand she owes me. She called me up just now and called me a cad and everything else because I had written to her husband, threatening suit."

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl
By John Held, Jr.

Story by Lloyd Mayer

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered at this point because my DARling PUPsy-wups isn't himSELF at ALL, my dear, and I'm ACtually FRANtic about the situation because he's SO paTHETic, my dear, the way he kind of LOOKS at you with those treMENdous, SOULFUL EYES and then VIolently starts searching FRANtically for FLEAS and all, but I mean he's REALly got me comPLETEly baffled and nonPLUSSED because he's ALways had the SWEETest disposition, my dear, and that's the strange PART of it because the other NIGHT when ARab was over at the house and we were SAGging loosely around, my dear, the PURP suddenly began eMITTing the most feROcious 'WOOFS' and GROWLS, and I mean I simply CAN'T COPE with it because he's ALways been the GENTlest lampkin and while I adMIT that contemplating ARab's map would drive the AVrage mut MAD I've always had such CONfidence in my precious pupsy that I've exposed some of my most VACuous BEAUX to him without anNOYing him beyond enDUrance, but if he's going to behave that way about ARab, my dear, I'll ACtually have to DIScipline him or something, only the STRANGE part of it WAS, my dear, that when I HEARD these odd sounds of RAGE and fury, and TURNED round and told him he'd have to sleep in his KENnel if he couldn't be aGREEable, ARab looked exACTly as if he thought I was talking to HIM all the time instead of to the HOUND, which I s'pose was because he's so USED to having me treat him like a DOG, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Penn. Mother Praises Friend

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup clears the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Pennsylvania mothers praise it. Mrs. Mary A. Johnston, 1612 S. Church Lane, West Philadelphia, says, "I'll never forget the friend who got me to give my baby girl California Fig Syrup. Nothing else helped her bowels, which were weak and sluggish. California Fig Syrup stopped her trouble quick, brightened her up, gave her an appetite. I have used it with both my children for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider them Fig Syrup babies."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

*Below zero.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure area that was centered over Lake Michigan yesterday morning, moved over into Eastern Ontario, while the low in the far Southwest advanced to Oklahoma, forming a trough of low pressure from Texas to Eastern Ontario. This formation of low barometer is causing cloudy weather throughout the central valleys with light rain in Southern Missouri and snow in Northern Missouri and Iowa. It also caused rising temperature conditions over the southern states and prevented the threatened drop in temperature over the Ohio Valley states for today.

The Northwest high that threatened cold weather for the entire East is developing southward over the Rocky Mountain states. It produced extremely low temperatures along the Canadian border, the lowest reported was 32 degrees below zero at Havre, Mont. This movement of the pressure units will delay the cold weather for this section, and, consequently the cold will not be severe.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly everywhere in the district. Stage at Pittsburgh is 16.4 feet. Dam No. 2, 8.6, and Dam No. 6, 16.1. The dams are down.

Plays of Stage and Screen Presented From Angle of Reviewer

WHAT WOULD QUEEN VICTORIA SAY ABOUT THE LOTHAR PLAY AT THE PITT?

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

QUEEN VICTORIA would not approve of the play that was presented at the Pitt Theater last night. In fact, the dear old lady who is taken as the type of her era would probably have frowned upon such a comedy as "The Command to Love," which makes some of the French dramas seem very prim and old-fashioned. Rudolf Lothar, the author, is a representative of that modern Viennese school which treats the commandments like billiard balls, and uses epigrams for cues. Last night it was international diplomacy that furnished the billiard table, and they carromed merrily from corner to corner, with never a fluke and never a lull in the game. "The Command to Love" is more brilliant than "The Play's the Thing," and more audacious than "Her Cardboard Lover." It is the quintessence of frivolity and froth, and would simply have shocked Queen Victoria to death. But the large audience at the Pitt Theater was tickled to pieces.

There is a military attaché of the French embassy to Spain, who is becoming very unpopular because he has become seemingly virtuous. His virtue is only seeming, because he is carrying on an affair with the wife of his ambassador, and she is very jealous, compelling him to keep away from other women. But his country is trying to negotiate a treaty with Spain, and the Spanish minister of war is opposed to the treaty. So the attaché is ordered by his superiors in the diplomatic service to make love to the war minister's wife, who rules her husband as easily as she invariably deceives him.

Between the two women, the two husbands, and the father of another girl, who suspects him in this case unjustly, the life of the military attaché is not a happy one. But the treaty is signed, the one siren gets a diploma for virtue and the other sees her lover go gladly to Peru, where life is simpler and diplomacy less exacting.

This plot is kept going from the rise of the curtain to the close of the play, and no juggler ever balanced glass balls with more dexterity than Herr Lothar does his situations. And the dialogue, much of the spirit of which depends on the aptness of the remarks which the characters themselves do not suspect, is no less lively and scintillating. It makes even a play like "The Constant Wife," Somerset Maugham at his best, seem stodgy and sedate. It isn't immoral—it is merely unmoral. It plays in that rarified atmosphere "where there ain't no ten commandments," and where even Kipling couldn't breathe.

A comedy of this sort must be played well, and this one is played superlatively well. Mary Nash and Violet Kemble Cooper are the two rival vamps, and do their vamping in a way that shows Madrid far ahead of Hollywood. They are at once subtle and primitive, ingratiatingly and exasperatingly feline. And Basil Rathbone is so convincing in bodying forth the hero of Herr Lothar, that he must be acclaimed as the perfect Lothario. The two fatuous husbands are played by Henry Stephenson and Ferdinand Gottschalk with suave finesse, and four or five other roles are in hands no less capable. It is an almost flawless cast.

Even so the production leaves no room for criticism. The Spanish atmosphere pervades the scenes, although it is a Viennese Spain. The same glamour is around the colorful costumes and the Goya lighting. All is as near perfect as the most captious critic could demand. But what would Queen Victoria say? Maybe she'd be speechless.

THESPIANS APPEARING -:- IN CURRENT -:- AMUSEMENT BILLS

Marjorie Lytell has the part of a young girl in "Straight Thru the Door," in Alvin.

Jack Donahue is co-starred in "Rosalie," in Nixon second week.

Corinne Griffith has the leading role in "Outcast," showing at Stanley feature film.

NIXON KEEPS ZIEGFELD'S "ROSALIE"

Ziegfeld's eye-filling and stage-filling musical comedy, "Rosalie," began its second and final week in the Nixon last night to the tune of much applause. It's a great show—with its flashing cadet uniforms, glittering royal epaulets and its stage crowded with scenic gorgeousness and ensembles of dancing girls and men.

And even when the chorsures are behind the wings, the stage is far from empty. In fact, Jack Donahue, Marilyn and the singing Frank Morgan make for a show in themselves. Believe us, that Mr. Donahue is a big entertainment package—and there's real class to his comedy.

This Ziegfeld piece, that has something to do with a West Point cadet's romance with a royal princess, hums through about eight scenes of amazing activity. And if you catch it all, your eyes and ears should be commended for doing a big evening's work. All the players—it would be quite a job to count them—deserve praise. And we include Jack's shaggy and white kitten.

"Burlesquers" Academy Bill

"Bowery Burlesquers" is the bill at the Academy this week. Billy Foster, German dialect comedian, and Marty Semon, eccentric comic, are featured, their skits including "The Jail of the Future." Tom McKenna appears in a specialty and Tim Benson helps the fun along. Evelyn Ramsey found favor with her songs. Tenney Hilson and her sister, Violet, also sang "Oriental Love Dream" and "Blue Grass," respectively. There are 16 girls in the chorus. Leona Reed and her 12 girls are seen in several dance specialties. The show is presented with scenic effects.

HODGE PLAY AMUSES IN ALVIN

William Hodge, who introduced his mystery comedy, "Straight Thru The Door," to Pittsburgh audiences last season, brought the same diverting play back last night, when patrons of the Alvin were treated to an enjoyable evening of Hodge and his capable company. The play, written by Mr. Hodge, is alleged by the author-actor to contain characters he observed building his home a little more than a year ago. He merely put them on the stage and wove a tale of a murder mystery around them, according to statements made in behalf of the play.

The audience sees the library of an unfinished house going through the transformation of completion, which point is reached in the final act, coincident with the clearing of the mystery of the murder of the contractor in the first act. The play is builded as the house was. And a good way to build, too, from a dramatic standpoint, but perhaps a little too pressing on the nerves from the angle of a householder waiting for the completion of his dwelling.

Mr. Hodge's role was that of the owner of the house, delayed in completion by labor troubles and other matters, capped by the slaying of the contractor under circumstances pointing to the owner as a possible murderer. With the usual Hodge composure he kept the audience in good humor as he proceeded to take the case out of the hands of detectives and solve the mystery himself. The star, in this play, has a part in which his agreeable personality and droll comedy ability gets over the footlights with telling effect.

Quite a large company assists Mr. Hodge, prominent among the players being Margaret Mullen, who won admiration for her depiction of an interior decorator; Edith Shayne, as the wife of the home builder; William Cullen, as a dumbbell detective; Walter Fenner, as an architect, and Leland Chandler, who shone in a boy part, and others.

TROPIC LIFE ON PENN SCREEN

"White Shadows in the South Seas," photoplay feature in the Penn this week, is a trip to the coral islands of the tropical Pacific, plus a drama which shows that the white man, instead of bringing a good influence to the native with his "civilization," gives him tawdry jazz and cigaret-smoking girls in place of the charm of birds and flowers that marks his life prior to the coming of the white trader. Monte Blue has the featured role of a doctor, made a wreck by drink, but still retaining a sympathy for the native and aversion for the white men who enslave him by trading gew-gaws for pearls. Cast adrift on a boat because of his interference, he lands on an island where natives have never seen a white man, becoming one of them. The place is pictured as a paradise until one day a boat appears. The traders are coming. He implores the natives to drive them away, but they are welcomed because they are white—white gods, like the good doctor. The end is the installation of "civilization"—phonographs, jazz and pearl slavery for the natives. There are marvelous scenic sequences in the picture, filmed in the locale of the story, with many native men, women and girls taking part. Raquel Torres plays a native princess. The doctor, however, is the center of most of the action, which includes a realistic shipwreck and pearl-diving scenes. On the stage, "Volcano" groups a number of specialties, concluding with a spectacular representation of a volcano eruption. News pictures include seeing and hearing King George of England delivering a speech dedicating a bridge. Orchestral and organ musical features are pleasing.

Grand Picture Has Irene Rich

"Women They Talk About," an entertaining sound picture, is current in the Grand. The "women" are Irene Rich, as a mother, and Audrey Ferris, as her daughter. The mother starts out by running for mayor in opposition to the present mayor, her old girlhood sweetheart. She ends up by becoming the mayor's wife, while her daughter becomes betrothed to the track-driving son of the mayor. The cast includes Claude Gillingwater, as an aristocrat and irritable grandpa; William Collier, Jr., and Anders Randolf. Short features are on the bill.

Miss Ralston Star in Aldine

An evangelist and a carnival ballyhoo girl are the principal characters in "The Sawdust Paradise," current photoplay in the Aldine. Esther Ralston presents quite a pleasing blonde portrait as the girl and Hobart Bosworth gives an interesting characterization as the evangelist. There's quite a lot of color and atmosphere to the drama—and romance, too. Esther is in love with a "three shell" artist of the carnival. The young fellow makes quite a cleanup in the small towns and sets out to acquire a carnival of his own. In the meantime, Esther, who has run afoul of the law and is on a three-month parole, feels the influence of the preaching Hobart. More than that, she introduces the ballyhoo idea into the evangelist's campaign, helping materially in bringing the crowds to his tent. The picture is a sound production. The bill also includes an amusing and spooky short comedy, offered with sound effects, and Elsa Ersi, Nat Ayers and a couple of singing sisters in Metro Movietone specialties.

SOUND FILM LIKED IN HARRIS

"The Hit of the Show," an entertaining picture of theatrical life, marked the inauguration of sound and talking films in the Harris yesterday. Large audiences were on hand and enthusiastically received this innovation. The sound device used was the Photophone. The plot of the picture, which features the stage comedian, Joe Brown, concerns a small-time actor, striving for a place in the Broadway bright lights. How he befriends a forsaken daughter of aristocracy, trying to "crash" the theatrical game, leads into a number of interesting situations. The picture offers romance, laughter and some tears. There's a talking prologue, well presented, that serves to introduce the story proper. One of the highlights in the sound line is a humorous story Brown tells as he impersonates the hero doing his stuff on the first night of a big Broadway review. In addition to the sound film, an amusing vaudeville bill was offered. The Delvey Sisters played the violin and sang. Edmund D'Orsay and Company gave a comedy skit that got the laughs. More comedy and some music was introduced by Bobby Bernard and Adele Keller in a skit, "The Hero," one of the vaudeville features was the Yacopi Troupe, members of which kept the audiences in an excited state with triple somersaults and that sort of thing. Other attractions included the Fox Movietone News.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

ASPIRIN

For sore throat, there's a swift and sure way to soothe away the inflammation. Every singer knows the secret! Dissolve Bayer Aspirin tablets in pure water, and gargle. Nothing in the whole realm of medicine is more helpful in cases of sore throat. And you probably know how Aspirin dispels a headache; breaks up colds, relieves rheumatic pain, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago! Just make certain to get genuine Bayer Aspirin; it has Bayer on the box, and on each tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

For TONSILITIS and SORE THROAT

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

WHITE SHADOWS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

I HAVE made you the most beautiful scene in a picture that is one unbroken, unreeling of beautiful scenes. Where the derelict white man, Dr. Matthew Lloyd, played by Monte Blue, teaches Fayaway, Raquel Torres, the little brown maiden of the pearl lagoon, to whistle!

Monte Blue and Raquel Torres make this, by the nicest, the tenderest, the most subtly simple bit of acting, a love scene that you will be long forgetting.

These two and Robert Anderson, playing Sebastian, the symbol of the white man's diabolical shadow cast upon the happy islands of the Marquesas, are the only white figures of any importance in the cast. The rest are native Polynesians. They play their part with the soberness, earnestness, dignity and gayety of children. Beautiful people with smooth brown, delicately but strongly made bodies, naturally graceful, with marvelous hair and teeth snowy as lump sugar. The very race that O'Brien's famous book made real for you, made more real now with vision and sound!

You see them dive deep, down like a cast stone, through luminous water, across the shark's path, for pearls; you watch the brown diver, his hair afloat, wrenching the shell away from the coral bottom. You watch him leave the bottom like a shooting star. You watch the rescue of a pearl-diver with collapsed lungs. You see a directness of action here that no white actor could ever imitate. You see them prepare one of their elaborate feasts, the ceremonial excitement of the fishing, the making of a course-dinner all gathered from the wild garden of the island. You see their feast dance, danced by a young native with a body of a Roman gladiator, encircled by a grotesquely crowned group with somber faces and the figures of mythological Greeks. You see a daily life so fascinating that you lose contact with your own world and come back to it with regret.

White Shadows in the South Seas is M.-G.-M.'s first sound picture. To be exact—synchronized. It is my idea of the ultimate "talkie." A most happy and satisfying middle-way betwixt a straight talking picture and the silent motion one.

You hear the sound of the crowds—the shaded clamor of voices—the rhythmic boom and beat of drums, the pat and rustle of flying feet, flowing water, wind, native music and singing, the faint hailing of the shore by the shanghaied, marooned white man—and the effect of this last is startling and surprisingly right, for until now the "hallooing" mouth in a movie was open and visibly shouting, but silently! And all of this blended by the continuous flow of perfectly synchronized music. A sound picture unmarred by what to my mind is the slowing up, sometimes ludicrous and melodramatic effect of a continuous dialogue, in voices that strike you with despair at their unlikeness to the looks of the speaker you have grown to like. A sound picture free of confusion.

Its story is quite simple, but sometimes we need a simple story when it has the merit of truth. If you care for and are thankful for simplicity in story in a setting of the sheerest natural beauty, "White Shadows" will be your picture. You'll cary it away with you and keep it by you for days. It will be a tragic dream of beauty, a haunting memory, hard to shake off. It has all the atmosphere of O'Brien's book, leaves the same impressions on your mind, carries the same beautiful and touching appeal, has the same quality of absorbing your usual self out of your world into another one by the same lazy, wandering, spellweaving style. It's simplicity is its fascination.

Its artistry lies in the fact that the story is kept in its true relation to the picture of the islands as a whole. A poignant story—one of many historical truths—told in the form of a beautiful and tragic incident—lived out in the life of the islanders in an atmosphere of unpremeditated beauty! Frederick O'Brien should be happy!

Monte Blue plays the role of his career. The finest thing he has done since his unforgettable Danton.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Transparent Sex

THERE are moments when it makes a married woman sad to see how much flattery is wasted on tombstones.

* * *

There are lots of times when a woman would drop a man, if she didn't know that he would probably drop right at the feet of another woman.

* * *

Once a woman has had a weak moment for a man, nothing on earth she can do will ever convince him that she has got her strength back, again.

HELEN ROWLAND

Sometimes the greatest effort of a girl's life is expended in trying to look delighted when she hears that one of her best friends is going to be married.

* * *

The old-fashioned girl used to keep her husband in the straight and narrow path by making his home more alluring than his vices. The modern girl does it by keeping his nose to the grindstone and spending his money so fast that he hasn't the time or the price left to indulge in his vices.

There are all sorts of bravery. Everybody admires the Lindy kind, some people admire the Tunney type; but MY hat goes off to the man who can look a cold shower in the face, these frosty days, and calmly turn on the tap!

* * *

Rouged lips may help win a man before marriage—but CLOSED lips are the kind that hold him, after marriage.

* * *

A woman feels that she's been "misunderstood," when she has been taken too lightly in a love-affair; a man feels that he's been "misunderstood" when he's been taken too seriously.

* * *

For the Lovelorn

Worried

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for some time, and I really take great interest in your splendid work. So please try and help me and work my puzzle out. I am a boy between the ages of 18 and 20, and have a girl, but the girl seems to take more interest in a married man whom she met. It's not that I'm jealous, but it's the girl I'm looking at. If she goes out with him and his wife finds out there sure will be some trouble. So I told the girl the best I could explain to her, but she does not see it. So, would you please advise me if I should tell the man. Because if I don't do something, it will break up his home. WORRIED.

You might talk it over with the man and impress on him the harm he is doing the girl. I am afraid, though, that it will do little good. He is surely old enough to know these things himself.

Perplexed

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am an ardent reader of your column and I think your advice is excellent.

I am a girl in my teens and in high school and I like a boy a couple of years older than myself very much. I am what is known as a "happy medium," medium good-looking, medium dancer, medium popular, etc. He is very popular but "girl-shy," although he should be over that stage. He lives in a small town near our town, but comes to our high school. I have heard many times he likes me and wants a date, but he has never asked me for one. He is a very good dancer, but rarely has dates.

Now, my dear Miss Gale, could you tell me what I could do to win him without seeming too bold? PERPLEXED.

Next time you talk with him, invite him to come to see you. That is your privilege, you know, and he may be waiting for the invitation.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

You Needn't Reply

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

About a year ago, I had occasion to meet one of my distant cousins whom I have not seen since childhood. Since then she has visited my home a few times, and I have had several enjoyable conversations by telephone with her mother. Now at a very early date the older sister of the girl I met is to be married and her mother has sent me an invitation. (Understand that I have not met the girl since childhood.)

The invitation reads: Mrs. —— requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter —— —— to —— —— on morning ——(date) at nine o'clock ——(church), city and state.

No other card was enclosed.

Does this mean that I am invited only to the church ceremony and not to the reception afterward (as no doubt there will be one)? When a reception is to be held after the marriage, isn't there another card enclosed inviting one to the reception?

2. As the situation is now, I am undecided about attending. Should I not go, should I write a formal regret or a sort of friendly letter explaining my reason for not attending? Whichever I should write, should it be addressed to the mother?

3. If a formal reply is necessary, just how should I word it? If a friendly letter, just how brief and gracious should it be?

4. If I do not attend, would it be out of place to send a small gift, inasmuch as this girl is almost a "stranger?"

READER.

THE form of the invitation that you quoted to me means that you are invited to the wedding ceremony only, to the church, that is. If you were invited to the reception afterwards, there would be something either on the invitation or on a separate card to indicate this invitation. The phrase "requests the honor of your company" is the phrase used in the invitation to the reception.

2. This kind of invitation need not be acknowledged. That is, the invitation to the church ceremony only need not be acknowledged.

3. You may write a friendly note, if you wish, sending best wishes, but this is not necessary. Especially since you are invited to the less intimate of the occasions.

4. You may send a gift, if you wish, but this, too, is not necessary.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds a Strong Ally to Help Her

"MARGARET!" My father's tone was one that he never had used to me before. "Please do not pain me by repeating that speech again. And put the thought which it reflects out of your mind."

I looked up at him in astonishment. His voice had been stern, but his face was even more implacable. Never before had he turned such a look toward me, and involuntarily I shrank back against my chair. Instantly the lines of his face relaxed and quick contrition sprang into his eyes.

"Did I frighten you, darling?" he asked. "Truly, I didn't intend to speak so harshly, but you frighten me when you talk about giving up your work, especially as I have a very keen suspicion that Richard is urging you to do so."

His words were a question, I found myself answering promptly.

"Yes, he is," I said simply.

He looked at me keenly.

"This catechism is as distasteful to me as to you," he said. "I think you will do me the justice to say that I never have tried to interfere with your life with Richard, have never questioned you, have never ventured to advise you, only upon one or two occasions in all these years, and then when the problems confronting you were no secret to anyone. But I feel very strongly that if you give in to Richard upon this point, you will make a very grave mistake, one that you will regret all the rest of your life. Richard is a good man, a good husband to you, but—I must say this, darling, he is unstable, he needs all those variety, all your mentality, to keep him interested."

"A good husband!" The words kept sounding in my ears. I wondered grimly what my father would say could he know that just before Grace Draper's death, and our discovery of her plot to murder Dicky, my husband had voiced the belief that it was I who was leaving a poisoned drink at his bedside each night.

It was a secret which I had kept religiously from my father, as I had from everyone who was not a witness of that night's tragedy. But it was a memory which never could be erased even though time had dimmed it, and Dicky's remorse had won my forgiveness. But I trembled to think what the effect on my father would be should he learn of that awful unfaith.

"It would be wonderful to have you here this winter, my child," my father's deep voice went on. "I can imagine nothing more enjoyable for me. But I must think of you and of Richard. Please believe me when I say that in my judgment it is vital that you should accompany him to the city, and should keep up your work."

From somewhere I mustered the courage to venture a question.

"But, Father, I thought you did not approve of—"

"Of wives engaging in professions? Theoretically, I do not. But when a brilliant woman is married to a man of Richard's temperament, it is almost a necessity for her to have some outside interest. A wife who devoted herself to domesticity would bore Richard to death."

My father, watching my face, smiled with tender comprehension.

"I know," he said soberly. "It's a hard problem, that one. But I know you'll solve it, my darling, as you will manage the other one you will have to meet, that of the very patent personal interest taken in you by your employer."

As if she were a period ending his dictum, Katie appeared at the door, breathlessly informing me that "Meester Veritzen mit his boy and dot Mees Lincoln, dey downstairs."

Wednesday, December 5

IT would seem as though a fagot of thunderbolts might materialize in the affairs of humans on this day, judging by the powerful and malevolent forces of Uranus and Mars, generally figured as a pair of devastating and passionately strenuous planets. They operate with aggressiveness and usually with abruptness, presaging changed conditions, clamor and tumult. On this day these negative aspects of the planets may be expected unless placed under subjugation by the will to refrain from rash and impetuous moves and ill-governed conduct generally.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of sudden changes and generally upheaved and disrupted conditions unless they refrain from tempestuous conduct and rash, impulsive, passionate or violent forcing of issues.

A child born on this day should be given rigid training and discipline in the control of a passionate, adventurous and tempestuous nature.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Some Reasons for Those "Blue" Days

IN olden times if a man was under the weather he would say, "My liver is out of order." That was the common complaint. The poor old liver was held responsible for half the symptoms suffered by the human family. The fact is that overeating, lack of exercise and neglect of the simplest rules of hygiene have more to do with the origin of these symptoms than any actual trouble with the liver.

DR. COPELAND

I think I recited to you once a funny limerick I heard somewhere. If my memory serves it ran as follows:

"A jaundiced young gent in an attic
Once thought he had trouble hepatic.
He bought him a flivver
Which shook up his liver
And now he's mentally ecstatic."

You know the kind of a day you have once in a while. You go about your affairs, cross and sullen. You have a chip on your shoulder and fairly ache for a fight. You are blue and distressed, imagining all sorts of terrible things about the future. You even wonder if you have lost your friends and possibly your religion.

When this occurs what has happened? Is the world out of joint, or is there something actually wrong with you?

My observation of the world and its inhabitants is that they do not change much overnight. It takes a long, long time to reorganize society. If you take this view, too, you must realize that the world hasn't gone to smash. On the contrary, the trouble is that you are temporarily out of step with the world.

The young man of the limerick lived in a dark and unventilated attic, loafing and sleeping. He was eating poorly prepared and badly selected food. Naturally he suffered the results of his wrong living. I am not surprised he thought his liver was out of order.

Perhaps you, too, spend part of your time in an attic. At least you live an attic life. You neglect exercise, fresh air and simple food. Your sleep is disturbed, your head aches, you are weak in your knees and imagine vain things. You diagnose your ailment as "liver complaint."

Driving a flivver over a rough road, driving a frisky horse, rowing a boat, regular tennis or golf, or just getting out-o'-doors for real work or a long walk—any one of these will "shake up the liver" and promote your health.

There are just two ways to feel well, and both are founded on the same thing. The heart must be stimulated to beat a few times more each minute. This can be accomplished by energetic exercise. It can be accomplished by enthusiastic interest in your daily work.

To feel well, then, you must have exercise or enthusiasm. To feel twice as well you should have both.

Answers to Health Queries

S. M. Q.—What will help cold feet which perspire all year round?

2.—What do you advise for a stomach condition which has persisted for quite a while?

A.—Probably due to a circulatory disturbance. Build up your general health. Changing the shoes and stockings frequently is often helpful for perspiring feet.

2.—First of all try to correct the diet and be sure that the system is kept clear. Avoid too many rich, heavy foods.

* * *

G. D. J. Q.—What would cause a great many broken veins on the legs of a young woman; would tight garters cause this trouble; what will cure or prevent their spreading?

A.—Undue exertion, such as long standing, etc.; keeping off the feet as much as possible and wearing an elastic stocking or bandage during the daytime should give relief. Tight, circular garters would be a very likely cause for the trouble.

Reiselt Likes Changes Hoe for Hockey Deal Griffiths' Explanation | Cub Pitchers Elated Klem Says He'll Quit Baseball Date Settled

NEW CUE TOURNEY RULES HELPFUL

OTTO REISELT, of Philadelphia, former three-cushion billiard champion and perennial contender for the world title, who at one time represented this city in the National Three-Cushion League, arrived here yesterday for a series of exhibitions at the Duquesne Club and P. A. A.

Otto Reiselt

In this instance, Reiselt's exhibitions will be of greater importance than the general run of such affairs, as they will form part of the preparatory of tuning-up activities whereby Otto aims to put himself in top form for the world championship tournament at the angle game to be held in Chicago on December 17, 18 and 19, in which he will be a contestant, along with Johnny Layton, Gus Copulos and Willie Hoppe. On the same dates, and in the same hall, Ralph Greenleaf, Frank Taberski, Erwin Rudolph and Pasquale Natalie will compete for the world championship at pocket billiards.

REISELT gives his unqualified approval to the changes made in the regulations for the titular tourneys, which include a revision of the prize-money distribution system, the payment of salaries of $6,000 and $2,500, respectively, for the ensuing 12 months to the players finishing first and second, and the exemption of each title winner from the old requirement of defending his honors in challenge matches during the year.

"The new system, in my opinion, is bound to work out for the good of the game in every way," said Reiselt. "The changes appear certain to spur on the players and to create wider interest. This applies particularly to the doing away with challenge matches. Under the old order of things, with only two players competing for the title, a challenge match attracted attention only in the city in which it was held, but with the championship being decided by tournament play each year interest will be widespread, and any increase in interest must necessarily result in a gain for billiards."

LIKE the management of the Pittsburgh hockey club, the officials of the New York Americans are confident that League President Frank Calder, at the meeting scheduled for Thursday in New York, will consent to let the proposed deal for the transfer of Roy Worters to the Gotham outfit go through.

"Our slant is this," said Tommy Gorman, manager of the Americans: "If the Pittsburgh club convinces President Calder that it doesn't want Worters and is receiving a fair price for him in Joe Miller and $20,000, Calder will approve the deal and Worters will be allowed to report to us. I think that will be done. We are not eager to become involved in a wrangle bearing on the eligibility of the player, because that doesn't concern us. We simply want Worters, and when we get him we'll play him."

Tuffy Griffiths

FIGHT followers, seeking an explanation of the dope upset caused by Tuffy Griffith's unexpected defeat at the hands of James J. Braddock, have been at a loss to understand why Griffiths rose at the counts of three-four and three after the first three knockdowns instead of remaining down for nine in order to get a needed rest and to allow his head to clear. "I had never been knocked down before and I didn't know what it was all about," is the way Griffiths himself explains it. "If I had ever been in that state before I might have known better. I'd have stayed down like other fighters do when they are hurt. But I had always knocked the other guy down, and I thought no one would ever get me like Braddock did. I felt that I had to get up, but I can see now that the wise thing would have been to stay down as long as possible."

PITCHING members of the Chicago Cubs continue to express unbounded pleasure at the acquisition of Rogers Hornsby by their club. They admit that they have two reasons for feeling elated over the deal. One is that they will no longer be required to pitch against the Rajah, and thus will be spared many a headache, and the other is that they think his added punch will save them from being defeated so often by one or two runs as they were last season.

"During the 1927 race," Charley Root writes a friend, "in 10 of the 18 games I lost I was shut out for the simple reason, as I figure it, that there was no deciding punch in our lineup. I am not kicking about the batting of any of our boys, and I admit that they tried their best to help, but we were short one big punch, and it looks as if Hornsby has that needed drive in his bat."

PAT MALONE is another Bruin flinger who confesses that he will feel a whole lot more satisfied with life when he has Hornsby on his own side instead of batting against him.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the Cubs ought to jump right to the front and never be headed in 1929. Manager McCarthy has ordered us not to play any winter ball, and all of the boys are obeying him. We are going to hop fast when the season opens."

Bill Klem

CAN you imagine a National League umpiring staff with Bill Klem missing? Klem has been calling them in the senior loop for so long that he has come to be considered a sort of institution, but a report from Miami, Fla., where he is spending the off-season, says he has decided to tender his resignation to League President John A. Heydler. It is said that, though it was understood a rotating system had been agreed upon for the distribution of the world series umpiring plums, Klem is peeved because he was not given one of the National League assignments for the 1928 series. He has worked in 11 of the classics during his quarter-of-a-century service in the parent circuit, but, according to reports, resents Heydler's failure to give him a twelfth appointment last October to such an extent that he threatens to quit. The Miami rumors are not generally credited among baseball men. They are of the opinion that, like, many a ball player who has talked of retiring, Klem will change his mind with the approach of another season and will be found back on the job when the bell rings next April.

SPEAKING of the opening of the next baseball season, some New York reports say that the National League has not yet agreed to the plan to delay the start of the 1929 major pennant races until April 16, and that President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates, as League President Heydler's associate in schedule making, at a conference with President E. S. Barnard of the American League in Toronto tomorrow will hold out for an earlier opening on April 10.

The rumors are without foundation. In the first place, President Dreyfuss will not be present at the minor league meeting in Toronto tomorrow, the Pittsburgh club being represented by Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss and Manager Donie Bush, who will leave tonight, and in the second place the April 16 opening was agreed upon by the two leagues last July and was publicly announced at that time.

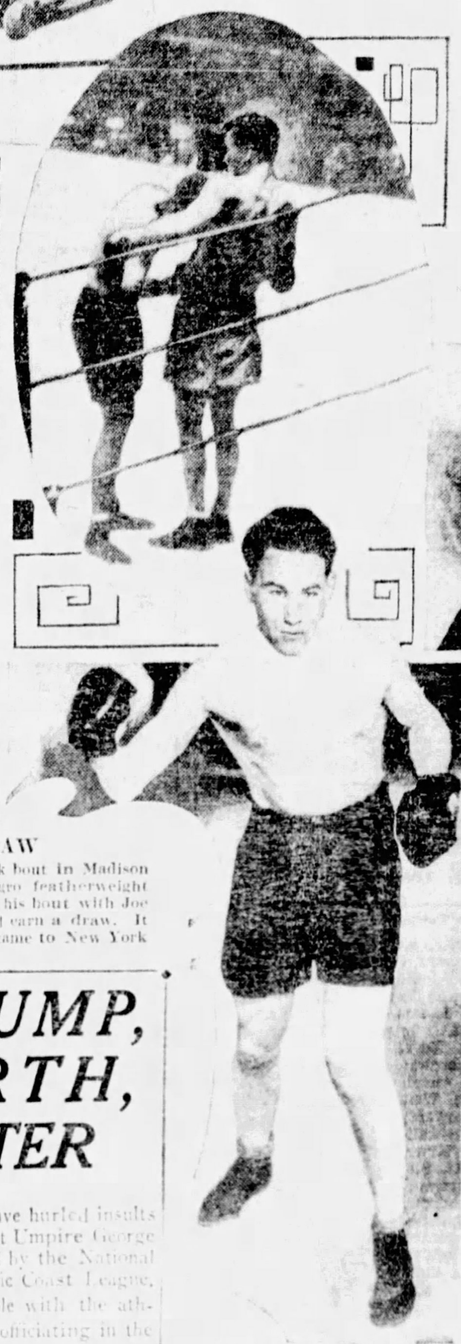
ACTORS IN RING UPSETS

TUFFY STOPPED!

The two-round knockout of Tuffy Griffiths, the Sioux City (Ia.) sensation, by Jimmy Braddock, of Jersey City, the other night, was one of a series of fistic upsets coming together that stirred the fans.



CHOCOLATE HELD TO DRAW

On the same card with the Griffiths-Braddock bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Kid Chocolate, Negro featherweight phenom, was knocked down in the first round of his bout with Joe Scalfaro and was lucky to come from behind and earn a draw. It was the first bout he had failed to win since he came to New York from Havana.

MINORS OPPOSE DRAFT

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Three important minor leagues met in annual session yesterday and, although the club owners spent many hours in baseball discussions, apparently little ground was covered.

After the session, John Conway Toole was still president of the International League, although rumors had persisted a movement would be launched to cut off his official head. After the first meeting of the International, President Toole was asked if the session was harmonious. "Quite so," was his reply; "not a weapon was drawn."

The draft, the all-absorbing topic to feature the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs opening Wednesday, was discussed by the International clubs, which voted to oppose any amendments to the present "modified draft," as it applies to Class A-A leagues. The American Association did not announce what contentions developed in its discussion. The Western League previously voted opposition to unrestricted draft.

The International League passed a resolution expressing regret at the illness of King George and hoped for his speedy return to health. The International also decided to open its season April 17 and close September 23, playing a schedule of 168 games.

ELECT VICE PRESIDENT

The meeting adjourned sine die after electing a vice president for the first time in its history, and creating a new body to be known as the executive committee. This committee consists of the president of the league and two other elected members who will cooperate with the president in handling the affairs of the league should necessity arise.

The two members of the executive committee elected to serve for the coming year are Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester club, and James P. Sinnott, president of the Newark club.

Lawrence Solman, president of the Toronto Leafs, is the vice president. By their action the league members paid a tribute to Solman, who has been president of a league club over a longer term than any of the other members.

A schedule committee composed of three members was chosen. It consists of Ernest J. Poole, president of the Reading club; J. E. Savard, secretary of the Montreal club, and Frank Nejey of the Jersey City Skeeters.

The American Association will attempt to adopt a schedule today. The 1928 pennant was awarded to Indianapolis, and a position of supervisor of umpires was created. Joe Cantillon, veteran manager, umpire and scout, and one of the best known men in baseball, was named to supervise the umpires.

The Western League re-elected Doyle Gear, of Topeka, Kan., as president and J. C. Burch, Omaha, Neb., vice president. The next season will open the third week in April and close some time in September. The schedule will be framed February 23d by Spencer Abbot, Pueblo, Col.; Jesse Holland, Oklahoma City, and Vice President Burch.

PETERS BEATS CARPENTERO

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 4.—Ernie Peters, Chicago flyweight, won the decision here last night at Jolly Hotel in his 10-round bout with Luis Carpentero of Toledo. Both men battled from the start, although Carpentero was handicapped after the fifth round when Peters closed his left eye.

The semi-final of six rounds went to Frankie Rio, Cleveland, who boxed L. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington. Tom Geary defeated Roy Minter in six rounds.

NEW N. L. UMP, MAGERKURTH, REAL ARBITER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

CHASTISING a player who was said to have hurled insults at him apparently did not militate against Umpire George L. Magerkurth, who has just been purchased by the National League from the Pacific Coast League. Magerkurth had trouble with the athlete in question while officiating in the American Association.

G. L. Magerkurth.

Men of the diamond, including other umpires, are unanimous in their high regard for the arbiter, both as a man and as an official. He is a close friend of Frank Brown, local umpire, who officiates in the American Association.

The new umpire has been criticized quite severely for the trimming he administered to a player, but his critics evidently are not acquainted with the provocation; if they are they do not tell of it. It is likely that the umpire must have been the target for some very bad language, else he would not have carried his reprisal so far. In any event, Magerkurth, even by his critics, is admitted to be a fine arbiter.

A Columbus paper in dwelling on the prospection of the erstwhile American Association officials pays a tribute to the efficiency of the graduate and then speaks of an incident that concerns Donie Bush, Pirate manager, and Magerkurth. The Columbus writer unfolds the tale as follows:

"At that time Bush was managing Indianapolis and Magerkurth was umpiring the game. Magerkurth called what Bush thought was a bad strike or something of the sort. Bush hopped off the bench and started for the plate.

"Magerkurth saw him coming and turning to the stands, took off his cap and announced in his best voice: 'Manager Bush is about to broadcast. When he has sung his swan song, he will promptly leave the park.' And Bush did promptly leave the park."

WILLIE DAVIES IS BEATEN

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—Despite a rousing rally in the ninth, tenth and eleventh rounds, in which he made quite an inroad on the margin of points that French Belanger had piled up in the early part of the bout, Willie Davies of Charleroi, Pa., weakened again in the twelfth and Belanger, by taking the final round won the decision by a comfortable margin, although a considerable portion of the crowd disagreed with the decision and expressed their disapproval.

Davies had an advantage in speed against his somewhat flat-footed opponent, but the latter was able to absorb all the Charleroi lad's light punches in the first half of the bout and punished Davies severely. In the fifth Davies was practically out on his feet and it looked as if Belanger would win by a knockout. Although he was in a bad way in the sixth and seventh, Davies weathered the storm and in the eighth, by dispensing with his boxing and fighting Belanger at his own style, Davies took the next three rounds. Earlier punishment and his own rally told and he was almost out at the final bell. Davies was badly cut about the face and his left eye was practically closed.

Chillysauce

Of course you all know George (Possum) Whitted, a star of the National League for many seasons. Doubtless many of you have wondered why such a smart athlete would drift out of the sport pages. George was considered as a big league managerial prospect when he played with the Pirates, but after leaving Pittsburgh he did not do much in a baseball way.

Whitted's friends will be glad to know that things have been looking up for Possum in the past year or two. George has been associated with Jimmy DeHart, a Pitt star, who is in charge of athletics at the Duke University at Durham, N. C., the home of Whitted. The latter coached the baseball team of the university and during the summer he manages the Durham club of the Piedmont League.

George had a striking experience in the race of this year. His team finished in last place in the league, yet the Durham club netted more cash at the gate of players than all the other clubs in the league put together. While its players for the most part were kids with little or no experience, they played an appetizing brand of ball, but were outclassed. Nevertheless, Greene was able to develop the youngsters to such an extent that he sold a whole flock of them, the purse for the receipts totaling $25,000. The highest thing was on Catcher Westergaard, who was sold to the Yankees for $5,000.

Young Rudy Stops Ring in Seventh

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Young Rudy, Pittsburgh, knocked out Dudley Ring Chatfield, O., in seven rounds here tonight. A barrage of rights in the head finished the Ring boy down several times in the sixth round.

Battling Gizzi, Washington, D. C., won from Eddie Klosowski, Chicago, in six rounds. Young Bruno, Moundsville, W. Va., stopped Dominic Gians, Pittsburgh, in the first round. Peping, Wheeling, and Freddie Edwards, Chester, fought a fast six round draw, and Young Beattie, McKinleyville, and Bud Israel, Wellsburg, drew in four rounds.

PANTHERS EAGER TO KEEP FLOOR RECORD CLEAN

By JESS CARVER.

MESSRS Carlson, Davies and Irwin have taken over the spotlight of college athletics and will turn its rays on their respective basketball teams from now until April. For some folks, this is good news—for others—just something more over which to yawn.

Out at Pitt, Doc Carlson faces the stern task of keeping spotless an enviable record set by his crackerjack quintet last year, when 21 foemen were "well taken" by the Panthers. At Tech, John Irwin has a left over record which he will be at some pains to better. The Skibos failed to win a ball game last year, losing some 14 struggles while Pitt was winning 21.

Chick Davies, with a veteran squad, is gunning for the Tri-State Conference title, which he lost to Westminister in the '27-'28 campaign. Chick was tendered a nice contract this year, even after the loss of the title, and he hopes to show the folks at Duquesne that last year was just an off season.

Pitt has been drilling since October. Doc has his boys in fair trim—and will start on the annual western trip next week with a team within a degree or two of the caliber of the great 1927 five. The Panthers will open December 13, playing Butler College at Indianapolis. The following night, Northwestern is to be met at Evanston and on the 15th, Wisconsin and Pitt will tangle at Madison. The last stop will be made at Columbus, where the Buckeys hope to afford Pitt an interesting evening, securing revenge if possible for the drubbing served the Staters here last year.

PLAY HERE DECEMBER 22

Pitt's first home game will be played at the Stadium pavilion December 22, with Dartmouth, 1926 Eastern Intercollegiate League champions furnishing the opposition.

The Tartans and Dukes will start off somewhat later, with Tech playing its first half dozen games away from home. The Dukes meet Ohio Northern on the Bluff floor December 21. The first Conference battle will be with Westminister, defending champions, at New Wilmington January 11.

Carnegie Tech plays six consecutive contests away from home before the Tartans make their home debut. The season will open on January 4 with Waynesburg at Waynesburg. West Virginia, Geneva, Pitt, Penn State and Washington-Jeff will be played in the order named before the team returns homt to meet Pitt in the opening encounter on the Tartan Gym floor.

According to Furman Nuss, Director of Athletics at Bethany College, the Bisons and Carnegie Tech will pry off the football lid at Wheeling on September 28. I shouldn't say pry off the lid, for it will be the second game of the season for the Bisons. But it will be the first pop of the gun for the Tartans, or, as some of the boys

VICTOR OVER SCHWARTZ

Emile (Spider) Pladner, French flyweight, who scored a decisive victory over Corp. Izzy Schwartz, of New York, in a 12-round bout in Paris, Saturday night. He won eight of the 12 rounds, with two even. Schwartz is recognized as the world champion by the New York Athletic Commission.

Two Carnegie Stars On All-East Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Less difference of opinion than has been the case in other years was expressed in the consensus of two score experts who assisted the Associated Press in the selection of the 1928 all-Eastern football team. Sports writers and coaches who picked the all-stars in the East were agreed largely on a majority of the positions.

Only one selection failed to include the elusive Christian Keeney Sagle, the Army halfback, and only two could not see Kenneth Strong, the fleet and powerful New York University star, as a member of the backfield. Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech's sure passer and field general, ran far ahead in the vote for quarterback, and Paul Scull, Pennsylvania's versatile captain, maintained a commanding lead for the fullback position. Scull and Strong were given votes for both the halfback and fullback places.

Chuck Howe, Princeton's great captain, was never in danger of being crowded out for center, for less than half a dozen experts overlooked him.

Ned Burke won a guard position for the Navy by a wide margin, but Bruce Dument, of Colgate, was hard pressed by Firpo Greene, of Yale, and Capt. Carroll, of Georgetown.

Two captains, Al Lassman, of New York University, and Bud Sprague, of the Army, ran well ahead of their rivals for tackle positions with Mooney, of Georgetown, a clever kicker, a good third.

ROSENZWEIG, END

Rosenzweig, Carnegie Tech end was well in from for his place, with Ed Messinger of Army lacking the Skibo's popularity, but leading Barrabee of N. Y. U., and Stinson, of Princeton, who qualified for the second team. Lawler of Princeton and Provincial of Georgetown were barely nosed out. The consensus selections:

FIRST TEAM.

Sprague, Army	left tackle
Burke, Navy	left guard
Howe, Princeton	center
Dument, Colgate	right guard
Lassman, New York U.	right tackle
Messinger, Army	right end

BOSTON DISBANDS

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The undefeated Boston College football squad disbanded yesterday, after the squad met with Head Coach Joe McKenney, and agreed that a post-season game would be unwise. Boston College had received several invitations, one of which came from Loyola for a game in New Orleans next Saturday.

LIGHTERS MEET MORRY FIVE SATURDAY

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Merry Five of Braddock, entered in the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, will step out of its class next Saturday night when it opposes the crack Duquesne Light quintet of the Allegheny County League in an independent battle at the South Side Market House.

The Light passers defeated the Monongahela Steelites in their first non-league contest at the Market House last Saturday night and are reported eager to add the Braddock quintet to their list of victims this week-end. This contest will be the last independent attraction for the Lighters before they make their bow in the County League, according to Manager McNutt. Leo Mackey, tri-state official, will handle the contest.

Two games are scheduled tonight in the Connected-Industrial League, Robertsons meeting Reliance Life and Kaufmanns opposing Pittsburgh and Lake Erie. The railroaders are bent on defeating the Kaufmann entry, which won its opening game last week.

Tomorrow night in the Philadelphia Company league Pittsburgh Railways meets Duquesne Light and Equitable Gas opposes Philadelphia Company. Both games are scheduled at the Fifth Avenue High School.

First U. P. Community House, A. A. U. champion of the district, is open for a game abroad next Saturday night. A return game will be played on the Community House court. Call Harry Woods at Fairfax 8287 or Fairfax 2405.

Olsen's Terrible Swedes of Coffeyville, Kan., the home of Walter Johnson, will make their annual invasion of the Greater Pittsburgh district in January and February. Ed Siegel, 1124 Colwell street, who handles the local bookings for the Swedes, reports that January 8, 12, 28 and 29 and February 18 and 25 are available for first-class teams desiring to meet the basketball circus. The Swedes proved popular in their last appearances here and are not likely to have any difficulty getting on the schedules of local independent teams.

Ed Minnick, manager of the Duquesne Lafayettes, is organizing a girls' team to play preliminary to the County League attractions at Duquesne this winter.

The Moose Six of Washington, Pa., would like to arrange games at home and abroad with girls' teams in the tristate district. Teams interested write Betty Thompson, 14 East Chestnut street, Washington, Pa.

Johnny Dundee Bows To Jackie Pilkington

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Johnny Dundee, of New York, a shell of his former self, lost his comeback fight against Irish Jackie Pilkington of Meriden, Conn., in a 10-round bout here last night.

Dundee showed flashes of his former speed in a few rounds but was unable to batter down the younger slugger. Dundee tried a number of his former ring tactics in one or two of the rounds, but contented himself principally with attempting to defend himself from the Meriden boy. Dundee weighed 128 and Pilkington 130½ pounds.

RICKARD PLANS BIG BOUTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(INC.)—The pugilistic pot was boiling with renewed activity today as a result of some of the upsets that took place on boxing's "Black Friday" last week.

Articles were to be signed today for a bout at Madison Square Garden January 18 between Leo Lomski, light-heavyweight of Aberdeen, Wash., and James S. Braddock, the slender Jersey City scrapper, who snapped Tuffy Griffiths' long string of victories Friday night.

Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, who was the victim of another upset on Friday when he was outpointed by Jim Maloney in Boston, has accepted terms for a bout at the Garden December 21 against either Maloney or Con O'Kelly, the imported Irish heavyweight.

Griffiths also has been matched for a bout December 21. It is expected that Nando Tassi, of Italy, will be pitted against the sensational Sioux City (Ia.) fighter.

If Beaver Falls wins its protest on the New Castle star, the valley eleven will get the title. Beaver Falls claims Ostrosky is over the age limit.

WORTERS CASE CHALLENGED BY CALDER

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The right of any club in the National Hockey League to deal for the services of a player under suspension by another team was challenged by Frank Calder, president of the circuit, yesterday in a statement on the case of Roy Worters, holdout Pittsburgh goalie, sold to the New York Americans.

Worters was suspended by Calder for refusal to play with Pittsburgh, but this suspension was lifted temporarily to allow Worters to take the nets for the Americans against Detroit, pending final decision in the case.

Calder's statement follows:

"The point at issue in the Worters case, which the governors of the league will have to decide, is the right of any club to deal for the transfer of the services of a player of any other club under suspension for hold-out or any other reason.

"My own contention is that such right should not be permitted, otherwise a situation might be set up which would make it possible for a richer club, by perfectly obvious methods, to cast discontent among the players of less wealthy clubs, brings about endless holdouts prior to the opening of the season and generally undermine the playing strength of the weaker clubs.

"It is not contended that this has happened in the recent instance but the principal involved, if the transfer is consented to, cannot fail to establish a precedent which will undoubtedly be made use of in the future."

Joe McQuiston

WESTMINSTER will bid farewell to a good quarterback at the annual football banquet Thursday night. Joe McQuiston, one of the three seniors on the United Presbyterian squad was to Westminster this fall what Howard Harpster was to Carnegie Tech. He carried the ball well, passed, kicked and served nobly on the defensive. McQuiston was one of the stars of the Titan's victory over Geneva. He ran his team like a champion on that occasion, baffled the Covenanters with his deceptive spinners and well-mixed attack and eventually led the Blue and White to a 12-0 victory. It was this setback that knocked the Covenanters out of the running for their fourth straight Tri-State Conference title. The U. P. banquet will be held in the dining hall at the new men's dormitory at Westminster, which is conceded to be the finest in Western Pennsylvania. Jess Carver, football critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph sports staff, will make the principal address.

YOU FOLKS WITH ACHES AND PAINS CAN GET QUICK RELIEF

Nationally Known Baseball Trainer Says It Does Not Matter Whether It Is Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia or Neuritis.

LINIMENT HE USES ON BIG LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS STOPS PAIN QUICK

Tells How to Stop Pains, Aches, Lame Back Quickly.

READ WHAT THIS EXPERT HAS TO SAY

For over twenty-five years I have studied how to keep men in perfect physical condition, and my experience makes me certain I can take a person, no matter how much they ache and hurt, from rheumatism, lame back, neuritis, lumbago, neuralgia or overexercise, and quickly have them feeling like running a foot race or a home run.

Ball players after getting up a sweat often play an inning or two in the rain, and then damp, cold and chilled to the bone, catch trains, with result that next day they show up at the ball park so crippled with rheumatism, lameness and stiff joints that they can hardly walk. An ordinary liniment would never fix them up quickly, but the liniment we use does the trick, declares Mike Martin, genial trainer of the Washington American League Baseball Club.

MIKE MARTIN, Trainer Washington Baseball Club

FANS KNOW MIKE

So many people with rheumatism, lame backs, neuritis and neuralgia have wanted this liniment which we use at the ball park that bottles are mailed all over the country, and now it can be obtained at any good drug store in small bottles for a few cents. Just ask for Mike Martin's Liniment. It is guaranteed to be the finest, speediest liniment made, and will bring complete relief to user or money refunded. Mike Martin has had a folder printed telling how to use this liniment and one is enclosed with each bottle. If people out of town cannot get Mike Martin's Liniment they should send a dollar for large size bottle to Mike Martin, Trainer, Washington Ball Club, Washington, D. C. It is a wonderful liniment. No man or woman with aches or pains should do without it.

ENDURANCE COUNTS MOST!

PERHAPS you wonder why the oil that you used in the old car doesn't work so well in the new motor. The answer is, automobile designing tends toward faster, higher compression motors and lighter cars. Many oils break-down under this increased heat and friction. The lubricant of today has a real job. Most oils are out of date.

For safety and real motor performance try Waverly. It has an extra margin of stamina which is way beyond the increased heat and friction of the new motors. It's the "longest wearing" lubrication you can buy and that means slower depreciation .... lower repair bills .... greater ENDURANCE for your car. Fill up with Waverly today—it's a real tonic for any motor.

YANKS SET DATES

BOXING RETURNS TO DAYS OF BACKERS

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THAT dear old fight game, which is terrible everywhere, according to reports, is going back, bit by bit, to the prehistoric days of the sport, when fighters were fighters because there was no dough and had to have backers who put up side bets on them in fights. Shades of Squire Abbington Baird, who sponsored Jim Hall and Charley Mitchell, and of Lord Byron, the poet, who backed Gentleman John Jackson, who defeated Mendoza for the English heavyweight championship back in 1795, are brought back by the announcement that Major A. J. (Tony) Drexel Biddle, the Philadelphia millionaire sportsman, has bought the contract of Rene DeVos, the Belgian middleweight, for $20,000 and has placed him in the hands of Jimmy Bronson to pilot to the championship. DeVos has whipped everybody in sight in his class with the exception of Mickey Walker and the Biddle bankroll will get him a crack at that worthy.

Maj. Biddle, by the way, has been a boxing enthusiast for many years. In his earlier days, he engaged Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, then just past his prime, to box with him to keep him fit. In one sparring match, O'Brien socked him a bit too hard and temporarily blinded him. The Major was in a dark room for many days.

During the war, Maj. Biddle served in the United States Marine Corps, teaching the boys boxing and bayonet fighting. He had a squad of his bayoneters at the Dempsey-Willard fight at Toledo, and put on an exhibition in the ring before the main bout while the customers were frying in the sun and sticking to the pine sap that was oozing from the seats and wondering what in blazes was keeping the headliners from arriving on the scene.

BOXING BAD IN NEW YORK

Speaking of this box-fighting business being on the blink, Manager Jimmy Bronson is quoted in a New York newspaper as saying that he has to keep his large stable of boxers busy on the road because they can't get any work in New York. He has 16 boxers in his string and since March they have covered 90,000 miles to appear in 134 bouts, only five of which were staged in New York. The fight racket is much better outside of New York than in the big town, Jimmy vows, which is a good tip for the small-town favorites who always are casting a longing eye toward the alleged big money in the Metropolis. Sandy Seifert, Pete Zivic and Dan Billick are three local boxers in the Bronson stable.

CARDS HAVE MONOPOLY

The Cards have had three of the most valuable players of the National League in the last four seasons, Rogers Hornsby in 1925, Bob O'Farrell in 1926 and Jim Bottomley this year. The only non-Cards to make the grade were Dazzy Vance, in 1924, the first year the award was made, and Paul Waner last year. Would it be taking too much liberty to suggest that the committee dealt one off the Bottomley of the Card deck this time?

BOXER MEETS MANAGER

A boxer will meet his former handmanager in a bout in Cleveland tonight when Billy Wallace clashes with Johnny Farr in one of the bouts on a Christmas fund benefit card. When Wallace first broke into Cleveland, a few years ago, Farr, who was a main-bouter, tipped off his manager, Scotty De Lauer, to grab him and put up $500 of his own money for a half-interest in Billy. Not long ago, Wallace broke away from the pair of managers and handled since has been stirred up. It remains to be seen whether teacher or pupil will be the victor when the grudge is settled.

ONE ON MR. YOST

From Fairmont, W. Va., Larry Boggs sends up a good Sigma Chi narrative about Fielding H. (Hurry Up) Yost, athletic director and former football coach of the University of Michigan, who is a member of the fraternity. It seems that several years ago Michigan was in Columbus for a game with Ohio State. Yost went to the Sigma Chi house and was met at the door by a member of the freshman class.

"I am Fielding Yost, of Michigan," he said by way of introduction.

The first-year lad looked him over, took a deep inhale on a cigaret, blew the smoke high and came back with:

"Come on in and sit down, and then I'll tell one."

RAPS PIRATES' CARD

"I see," observes a local baseball man, "that the Pirates are going to put in nine days in San Francisco again next spring. Isn't that where all of the pitchers developed spavins, fallen arches, lame backs, four-inningitis and all the other kindred ills that put the club out of the pennant race in the first half of the season last year? It seems to me that the Corsairs would do much better to stay at Paso Robles, where the weather is agreeable, than to go up to 'Frisco for an extended stay where the breezes put cricks in the necks of the athletes and knots in their arms and undo all the good that has been done in the training camp. I may be wrong, but I thought the main idea of going to the Coast was to get the boys ready for a quick start when the bell rings and not to see how many exhibition games can be crowded in at a big park in a big city that has proved a jinx in the past."

All of which sounds reasonable enough.

Harvard Gets Place On Michigan Schedule

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—A game with Harvard, Michigan's first since 1915, and five Big Ten games will furnish the backbone of the University of Michigan's 1929 football schedule.

McCracken to Return To Lafayette in 1929

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The return of Herbert McCracken to Lafayette College as head football coach for two years was announced last night at the annual banquet tendered the 1928 squad. McCracken has been coach at Lafayette for five years.

William Sherwood of Nanticoke, was elected captain. He is an end and the only member of the team that started the final game of the season who will not be lost by graduation. Twenty-six players were awarded varsity letters.

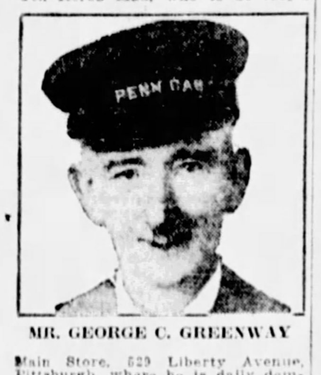
ENDED 3 YEARS OF SUFFERING

Local Taxi Owner Says Ten Herbs Relieved Stomach, Kidney and Bowel Trouble.

"I can honestly say that Ten Herbs has made me feel like a new man," was the recent statement of Mr. George C. Greenway, 383 Wilkinsburg Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous new herbal medicine to crowds of men and women of all ages.



MR. GEORGE C. GREENWAY

"I am proprietor of the Penn Cab Co., and my hours are long and uncertain, and I have to be out in all kinds of weather," continued Mr. Greenway, whose stand is at the Joseph Horne Co., and who has lived in Pittsburgh for 19 years, being well known in this city. "I think this to some extent was the cause of my poor health. I felt tired all the time and there were pains in my limbs and body. Food did not digest properly. After eating, I would always have severe gas pains and a feeling of suffocation around my heart. My bowels were clogged all the time and I was a constant user of laxatives. My kidneys seemed to be out of order, for I had to arise four or five times a night and this kept me from getting sufficient rest. At times I did not feel able to work.

"I was in this conditions for three years—then I joined the legion of Ten Herbs users. Now indigestion and gas pains are gone. The pains and aches in my limbs and body have been relieved. My bowels are regular and I have no need of laxatives. My kidneys seem to have been benefitted, for I can sleep the whole night through without getting up. My appetite is a hundred per cent better. That tired feeling is gone and I feel much more energetic. I heartily recommend Ten Herbs to all."

Ten Herbs not only benefits the stomach, kidneys and bowels, but also regulates the liver and gives the whole system a thorough cleansing.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Lee Meadows To Return To Bucs

Lee Meadows, one of the few bespectacled moundsmen in organized baseball, and at present on the voluntary retired list, will return to the Pirate lineup for spring training next year.

Meadows asked to be placed on the retired list last season. He had neuritis. Donie Bush, Buc manager, has come from Leesburg, Fla., where Meadows lives, with information that the pitcher is in good condition and will go to spring training camp at Paso Robles, Cal., with the team.

Erie High Gridders Off for Georgia

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 4.—Twenty-two members of the Erie Academy High football squad, together with Head Coach Lowell C. Drake, Principal C. W. McNary, Faculty Advisor H. D. Leberman and Manager Abe Cohen, boarded a train here at 11:44 o'clock this morning for Atlanta, Ga., where they will meet the Atlanta Technical High eleven in an intersectional game on Thursday afternoon.

Pete Zivic Stopped By Singer in Fifth

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Al Singer, 127½, featherweight idol of the Bronx, punched his way one step nearer the throne by flattening Pete Zivic, 127, of Pittsburgh, in the fifth round of the scheduled 10-round bout before about 4,000 spectators at St. Nicholas arena last night.

It was a hopelessly one-sided bout. Zivic was knocked down for counts of nine twice in the second round, once in the fourth and twice in the fifth before the sixth and final knockdown that ended the match.

Joe Kelly to Return To Columbia Club

COLUMBIA, N. C., Dec. 4.—Joe Kelly, former Pittsburgh outfielder, has signed to manage the Little Pirates at Columbia, S. C., in 1929, according to an announcement made by L. L. Propst, president of the South Atlantic club. It is the first time in many years that a pilot has returned for his second season as leader of the team here.

COLLEGES

put it, the first chance Tech will have to realize how good Hargrater really was.

Nuss, by the way, tells me that he is to have a new assistant coach next year and that he will have a football team of no mean ability. He needs one.

THE members of the Tri-State Conference are very anxious to induce Grove City and Allegheny to come into the fold. This was indicated rather strongly at yesterday's meeting when better than three quarters of an hour was spent in discussing ways and means towards bringing the Methodists and the Chimson into the fold.

There is one way in which the Conference might be able to FORCE the two outsiders in, and that would be by forcing them to conform to the eligibility code of the Conference before scheduling athletic encounters with them. I am inclined to believe that both the Grovers and Allegheny would suffer somewhat if they were to suddenly find themselves unable to card Westminister, Geneva, Thiel, Bethany, Duquesne and Waynesburg.

But there will be no such attempt made by the Conference, in the first place, games with the two outsiders mean too much financially to Thiel, Westminister and Geneva to warrant these schools putting a boycott on Mr. Thorn and Mr. Townsend. It would be a boost to the Conference if Bob and Towny could be induced to buckle on the armour (?) of the league, but if they do not choose to join, I hardly believe any drastic measures will be taken by the Conference folk.

THE Geneva Alumni Association is deserving of commendation for its fine gesture in donating a grid trophy for the Conference. The emblem, which was presented to Westminister and the Dukes yesterday, is a fine one. It is of silver, stands about 20 inches in height, and on the lid is a well-modeled figure of a punter.

Rev. Redpath of Beaver Falls, the taressurer and chairman of the organization, made a neat speech in presenting the trophy and tendered the best wishes of the Geneva Alumni to the Conference.

U. S. F. A. ACTION UNFAIR TO DUNLEVY

By TOM BIRKS.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA, in the form of the Dunlevy Soccer Club, surely got a fine sock in the eye at the hands of the secretary of the United States Football Association when Referee McFarlane, of Cleveland, was assigned to handle the National cup tie at Charleroi between Dunlevy and the Akron Goodyears.

Just why the local club, with the heavy expense of Akron traveling overnight was forced to also stand the payment of a referee's expense from the Buckeye state cannot be explained, but it is evident secretary Tommy Cahill, in order to try and give the Oilmens a square deal in this important game, got mixed up a little in his telegraphy.

There is no question that McFarlane refereed a great game, not even the most biased Dunlevy rooter could find the least fault with the work of the Ohio State official—but here is the catch: If it was not fair to use one of the West Penn Valley referees in the game because they are working the Dunlevy games, why was it fair to use McFarlane, who is working games in the Cleveland league, of which the Akron team is a member?

Bringing McFarlane from Cleveland because of his neutrality was no argument. Any referee assigned to the game would have been just as neutral, even had he not been as competent.

The writer asked the Akron officials why McFarlane had been assigned the game, but they did not understand, unless it was because of the importance of the game. The game itself was no more important than any game in the preliminary rounds and because McFarlane is working games of the Rubber Town boys, he could not be classed any more neutral than members of the West Penn Valley League.

Dunlevy, however, never let out a whimper, and when the gate was checked up possibly felt a little lucky that it had come out of it with an even break.

Saturday soccer must be good to attract a crowd, and out-of-town teams do draw. There was a good crowd in the grandstand when the tilt started, and Dunlevy was not forced to go down in its jeans to make up a deficit.

HOWARD

"I've paid $85 nothing ever fit me like Howards"

S. Benson, of Brooklyn, is a "hard-to-fit." He used to pay big money to custom tailors. One day we altered a stock model for him, and now he's another Howard booster. We can save you as much money as we saved Mr. Benson, give you beautifully tailored garments, handsome styles and patterns—and no charge for alterations.

By the way, Howard makes a chauffeur's uniform out of 16-ounce Whipcord that certainly stands the gaff of constant driving. $22.50.

Howard's Blue Whitney Overcoat, made from genuine Metcalfe Mills Whitney cloth. Satin lining replaced free if it wears out within two years.

Why not drop in the store here and let us show you just what kind of clothes Howard puts together for $22.50? There isn't another house in the country that approaches the Howard standard of quality.

This Shows Butcher, Baker, Laborer All Buying Stock.

By B. C. FORBES

THE president of a corporation in the Northwest sends me a list of the subscribers for an issue of preferred stock. Its two most interesting features are the number of shares purchased and the occupation of the buyers.

This information furnishes fresh evidence of the widespread use of the public's interest in acquiring stocks.

INCLUDED among the occupations are those of logger, rancher, shingle weaver, game warden, widow studying mechanics, doctor, clerk, milk inspector, telegraph operator, meat cutter, housewife, merchant, nurse, retired, engineer. The highest number of shares taken by any one buyer was 5, and only two subscribed for that amount. Two bought 25 shares each, one took 20, but all the others were for smaller amounts.

SLIGHTLY more than half of the subscribers had not previously owned any stock in this company, a public utility. A reasonably safe assumption would be that most of the new buyers had not previously owned any kind of stock whatever. Experience has proved that public utility corporations have been more effective than any others in inducing families of modest means to make their debut as stockholders.

HERE is a slice taken at random from the subscription list, the names and addresses being omitted. The first column indicates the number of shares subscribed for, the second indicates that the subscriber already owns stock in the company, the third indicates new buyers, while the final gives the occupation:

FROM every quarter comes testimony that Americans are becoming interested in stocks at a rate never before known. The buyers range all the way from the humble saver of a few hundred dollars to the wealthiest in the land. Go where you will, the talk is almost certain sooner rather than later, to turn to stocks.

Brokers tell me that the increase in women dabblers in stocks has been extraordinary. In some branches offices thrown in New York more women than men crowd in to watch the quotation board or to dabble in the tape. The old rule barring women as customers has been lifted by most brokers. Stocks selling for next to nothing have an irresistible fascination for many women of moderate means who have contracted the speculative fever, instead of buying a few shares of high-grade stuff, they choose to gamble in low-priced issues.

WOMEN are not the only ones attracted by low-priced issues. E. F. Hutton & Company, among the largest of New York stock exchange houses, has felt it necessary to issue this warning last Wednesday:

"The temper of the trading public rather disturbs us when we see a stock like Canadian Marconi, which sold for $3 not so long ago this year, run up $11 in one day to $14. Earnings this year will probably total about two cents a share, so that it is selling at about 1,400 times its earnings. As far as we can determine, the sole reason for the rise in Canadian Marconi is the speculative craze that has gripped the country."

THAT phrase, "Speculative craze," hits the existing situation squarely on the head.

REGULAR REPORTS URGED FOR TRUST INVESTORS

By GEORGE B. SNYDER.

THE growth of investment trusts has brought to light a new phase of the duties of management to stockholders. The right of the owners of the securities to know exactly what is being done with their money has been the subject of much recent discussion in banking circles.

Investment trusts have been in existence in England for half a century but until the last three years they have been almost unknown in this country.

They have come into favor here due to the fact that they offer the investor of small means the benefits of experienced management and of diversification in a wide range of industries.

Unless an individual's capital is large, he can only place his money in a few ventures and he has only his own limited knowledge to guide him. But the investment trust buys stocks or bonds in a large number of companies, engaged in many industries, on the theory that a depression in one business or one section of the country will be replaced by prosperity in the others.

AGAINST these widely diversified holdings the investment trust company sells stocks and sometimes bonds. The income to pay a return on its own securities is derived from interest or dividends on the securities held.

Income may also be increased by the sale of portions of the underlying securities at higher prices than the original cost.

Investment trust companies are not to be confused with holding companies. The former usually buy only small blocks of securities while holding companies ordinarily secure controlling interests and assume a voice in the management of the underlying properties.

The securities owned by investment trusts may be changed from time to time at the discretion of the management while those of holding companies are of a more permanent nature.

THE advantages of the investment trusts are attractive when the proper management is in control and when the stockholders know what the underlying securities are and what is actually behind the company.

There has been a tendency, however, to keep the public altogether ignorant or only partially informed of the holdings. In several recent offerings the reputation of the directors of the company has been the only guidance for the stockholders. In other cases the names of companies whose securities are held has been given but no mention has been made of the amounts of the various investments.

The fact that public knowledge of buying and selling activities of the investment trusts might make it difficult to take advantage of extensive researches before the facts discovered became generally known, has been mentioned as one reason for secrecy about the holdings. That the sale of a large block of stock might react against the standing of a particular company also has been advanced.

Although it is conceivable that the immediate publication of changes in the holdings might prove embarrassing it is difficult to see what harm could be done by publication of holdings at the time the annual or quarterly reports are made.

The Investment Bankers' Association recently went on record in favor of requiring full publicity on operations as the surest safeguard to the funds of investors placed in these organizations.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED

STANLEY HAS PLEASING FILM

"Outcast," showing on the Stanley screen this week, with Corinne Griffith in the featured role, is a picture that gives much satisfaction. Miss Griffith is introduced as a friendless girl—an "outcast"—by showing her as a literal one, being "bounced" from a place and into the presence of a "stewed" gentleman. The meeting is fate for both of them. For him because the girl he loves is to marry another and he sees in the girl of the streets a chance to relieve his feelings. He bargains with her to attend the wedding with him. Just the prank of a stewed gentleman disappointed in love, but the beginning of life for both him and his new friend. The girl makes a man of him by her own exemplary life and saves him from his old flame through a sacrifice of self-respect to prove to him that the other really did not love him. Miss Griffith makes a pleasing picture in this portrait of a girl with character which needed only a little sympathy for development. Edmund Lowe is the man, handsome, but weak. Louise Fazenda gives a comedy touch to the photoplay as a jazz-mad friend of Miriam, the girl, played by Miss Griffith. Short film features, including news with sound and screen novelties and specialties, also are shown. The talkie news presents King George of England dedicating a new bridge, the voice of the King being heard. The orchestra presents a special overture.

MAGIC, MIRTH, MINSTRELS IN DAVIS

While the Davis Theater is preparing to change its policy, it is giving its patrons the most amusing vaudeville bill of the season this week as a farewell offering. The Atlantic City Steel Pier Minstrels furnish the greater part of the entertainment, and have a number of new gags which they put over in a way that keeps the audience in a roar. From the fellow who is looking for a place to get quinine, having been told to take quinine and whisky, to the finish, this minstrel act is as full of good things as a Christmas pudding of raisins. There's even a lesson in psychology—how to make anyone say "No, I haven't"—that is well worth learning. Several good singers and dancers round out the act with rhythm and melody. There are only two other features in the vaudeville, but both of them very fine. Cardini is a magician whose sleight-of-hand is extraordinary—with gloved fingers he performs the most difficult card passes and palms; he produces and vanishes thimbles, billiard balls and cigarets in a way that leaves the audience breathless. Then there are the three Meyakos, with a dainty Japanese violin, song and dance act. The film feature is "Flying Romeos," in which two barbers in love, impersonated by George Sidney and Charlie Murray, turn involuntary aviators to win the heart of the pretty manicure. It's one of the best screen comedies in many weeks.

Comedian Tops Sheridan Bill

Bobby Heath, in a skit, "The Family Affair," is topping the new three-day vaudeville bill current in the Sheridan Square. The act includes comedy, songs and dances. Heath, who writes songs, offers several of his own selections. The photoplay is "The Hit of the Show," featuring Joe Brown, stage comedian. It is a picture of theatrical life, depicting the struggle of a small-time actor to strike big time and Broadway. Other acts include Marty White, a singing, dancing, talking comedian; Gibson, Frisk and Stewarts in song and dance; Ervel and Dell, harmony singers and tap dancers, and Dave Curtis and company in a novelty, and other attractions.

Wills $100,000 Shaft To Southern Leaders

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The will of J. Henry Ferguson, president of the Colonial Trust Company, who died November 24, set aside $100,000 to be used for the erection of a monument depicting Robert E. Lee and Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, Confederate generals, parting prior to the Battle of Chancellorsville. The will specified that the statue be erected within 10 miles of Baltimore's City Hall.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write your name and address in the special coupon you see at the end of this announcement, and send for a bottle to try. This complimentary bottle is forwarded, prepaid without charge of any kind:

Unpardonable Injustice to Many Millions of People If Senate Does Not Pass Boulder Dam Bill This Session

WITH new insistence and authority, the report of Secretary Work's Colorado River Commission makes it the unquestionable duty of the Senate to pass the Boulder Dam Bill promptly and with no salient feature emasculated.

That report removes any doubt, real or pretended, that might have existed regarding the project's engineering or economic feasibility.

It is entirely feasible to build the proposed 550-foot dam.

And it will be paid for to the last dollar, principal and interest, in power sales to consumers of the Southwest.

The findings of this board of engineers and geologists, appointed on motion of the Senate and selected for their impartiality as well as their ability, splendidly bear out the many Government experts who have been recommending a high dam in Boulder Canyon ever since the enterprise has been seriously discussed.

That it can be built and that the plan is economically sound are fundamentals which are now completely removed from the field of inquiry. About them there can be no further honest question. THEY ARE FACTS. If there are any who will not accept the verdict of this commission as final it is because the truth is not to their liking.

Thus is the opposition again refuted, as it has been in every disinterested and intelligent inquiry into this subject. But it is not silenced. With the reassembling of Congress the power lobby will renew, or rather, continue activities; and it will be busy as of old in manufacturing excuses why Boulder Dam shouldn't be built, and marshaling forces against that project, vital and indispensable to millions living in a great region of this country.

But who, remembering with what apparent sincerity and with what vehemence the opposition agents said that such a dam was an engineering impossibility, and that it would never pay for itself, will be so gullible as to believe now in the truthfulness and value of their attacks?

The Senate, taking up this great constructive measure with the new light that is shed upon it by the commission's report, should have no trouble now in sizing up the power trust opposition as selfish, meretricious and dishonest.

NOT ONLY SHOULD THE BILL BE PASSED AT THIS SESSION, BUT IT WILL BE INEXCUSABLE IF IT IS NOT PASSED.

Those who ask the relief from flood and drouth and the protection against domestic water shortage which this project will afford, have made a complete case, doubly and trebly fortified.

It is possible that enemies will try to bolster up their shattered opposition by citing the new estimate of cost, which is $40,000,000 more than the Government's.

That need not and will not affect in the least the opinion of well-informed Senators. The commission recommends a wider dam than the Reclamation Service had planned, purely as a measure of additional safety. That accounts for several millions increase. Larger and better appurtenant works absorb the balance.

The IMPORTANT part of the commission's findings on this angle is that the Southwestern territory which will take power from the dam provides a market that will make payment of the entire cost possible within fifty years.

The people in that area are willing, anxious and able to pay the bill. It will be sheerest hypocrisy, therefore, for any one to oppose the project because it is going to cost more than was figured.

The Senate, having had this project under consideration for years, now has unanswerable confirmation of its feasibility in every essential feature.

That means the time for action has come. Any delays or compromises that would thwart the main purposes of the Swing-Johnson Bill would be an unpardonable injustice to a great section that comes to Congress with needs that demand relief, a perfected plan for meeting their necessities and a negotiable promise to pay.

Who Stole the Papers? Or Walsh vs. Moran

A former city detective is quoted as saying he will sue Peter P. Walsh, superintendent of police, for damages, alleging false arrest, defamation of character and "everything on the calendar" as a basis for the injury he claims has been done. Patrick E. (Happy) Moran is the individual behind the statement, and he says he was dismissed from the service because he was getting "too close" in his investigations.

Moran was discharged a day or two ago, after appearing for a fifth time before a magistrate for a hearing on a charge lodged by Walsh. At none of his five appearances did anyone appear to press the charge against him. His arrest was one of the incidents in the disappearance from police headquarters of confessions obtained from two constables recently sentenced for extortion from North Side bootleggers. It was claimed $2,000 had been paid for the return of the confessions, but another who had been named in the transaction said Moran was not involved.

The public is not concerned in matters that may be between Messrs. Walsh and Moran. Each has been before the grand jury investigating vice and graft, so it may be assumed that what the county authorities want to know about each from the other has been told. But it is concerned about what goes on in the police headquarters, especially the theft of evidence in a criminal case.

If Walsh had no case against Moran why did he cause his arrest? If he did have a case, why did he not appear to prosecute it? The status of the matter, in view of Moran's statement that he was getting "too close," takes on an aspect too sinister to be ignored. We wonder if Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, again will permit to pass unnoticed a matter which calls for action on his part?

When things in the police headquarters safe are not secure against theft, none of Mr. Clark's trusty men are safe. Some bold rascal may come along and kidnap them as they slumber.

Calendar Reform Parley Is Proposed by Porter

Representative Stephen G. Porter some time in the future may be called "the father of the calendar." That is possible should the calendar he favors be adopted, although he did not originate it. But he is back of a resolution requesting the President to call an international conference for calendar reform. An alternative is the attendance of representatives of the United States should it receive an invitation from some other nation. Naturally, Mr. Porter should be a member of such a commission.

The calendar Mr. Porter favors is one advocated a year ago by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, although it makes no claim of having originated it. It has been favored for several years by scientists and business men, who see the advantages of its order and system over the lack of it in our present system of recording time.

The proposed calendar would have 13 months of 28 days each. Each month would begin on a Sunday and end on a Saturday, the closing of a week's business and that of the month coming at the same time. It is designed to insert the extra month between June and July. To take care of the 365th day it is suggested that there be a non-day between Saturday, December 28, and Sunday, January 1, to be celebrated as the New Year Holiday. There would be another non-day in midsummer every four years to absorb the 366th day of leap year under the present calendar. The disposition of extra days would be matters for scientists and ecclesiastical authorities to work out, under the resolution of Mr. Porter.

The inexactness of our present calendar, with months ranging from 28 to 31 days in length, has long been recognized as a failure that should be remedied. There have been many plans to equalize the months, but the one proposing a year of 13 months appears to be an ideal one, and it has grown in favor among those who have given the matter thoughtful attention. Some business firms have adopted it already, by making the week instead of the month the unit of business calculations.

We hope, with Mr. Porter, that the reformed calendar be put into effect January 1, 1933, which date falls on Sunday.

Tales That Are Told

The Only Girl

JACK had just asked Jill to marry him, and she had murmured "yes."

"Jack, dear," she ventured, after a long silence, "am I the only girl—"

The young man's arms tightened about her.

"Jill," he interrupted fiercely, "don't ask me whether you are the only girl I ever loved. You know it as well as I do."

"That wasn't what I was going to say at all, Jack," she answered. "I was going to ask you if I was the only girl who would have you."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE Scotch get a great kick out of the Scotch stories. They say that in Scotland they never let a chance to ring in a Scotch story get by.

Anyhow, an English engineer was in Glasgow, and he was taken to see a school building that was shedding its plastering in one or two big rooms. The Englishman looked over the plans and the building, and he says, "I think the trouble is with those two beams in the center of the ceiling. It's a long span, and I think those beams give a little."

"Give a little?" says the Scotch host. "Nay, you're wrong there! Them beams come out of our own Scottish forest!"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Poets

IN splendid shrines the few
Dwell deathless and apart,
Their message ever new
For every listening heart.

They read the secret scroll
Star-written on the sky,
And where the fierce waves roll
They heard the sea-king's cry.

Though some were crowned by fame,
While blessing Earth with truth,
Cold Death to others came
With mockery, in their youth.

But, one and all, they heard
The voices in the wind,
And, one and all, were stirred
By beauty few may find.

For it was theirs to know
The spell of dusk and dawn,
And lilies pallid glow
When day has just withdrawn.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THEY'RE going to do something about these Bossy Mamas in Vienna. They've organized a "League of Men" to combat "the growing domination by women." But they're not expecting any help from Yankee husbands—no, indeedy!

"American men are too cowardly to organize against women," says Herr von Schwartzthal, president of the new league.

"England responded more readily to the battle cry of our crusaders. One of our honorary members is Lord Phillmore, president of the International Law Association. He fully recognized the necessity for revision of marriage and alimony laws, which show a hostile tendency against men all over Europe and America.

"Our laws as they exist now only support the tyranny of modern women, who demand all rights and refuse all duties; who are marrying men only to lead a careless, workless, childless life; or to obtain a divorce and lifelong alimony. Some girls regard even motherhood as an opportunity to take hold of some wealthy alimony payer.

"Our league is fighting for the emancipation of the oppressed male sex. We demand a revision of the present alimony law. We want only equality and we protest against favoritism of the legislative and judicial authorities in favor of women. Is it not a shame that the police invariably side with women whenever a domestic quarrel develops?

"This tyranny of women is destroying men's faculties. The men are becoming weaklings without the power to make decisions unless woman tells them what to do. Only the emancipation of man can prevent our race from declining and going into absolute ruin."

Which listens wonderful.

But will it buy the boys anything?

It will not. Organizations of Peevish Papas will only prolong the ancient feud between men and women. Good sense and fair play alone can cure that feud.

We're up against the truth at last that women are people as well as men. And they're people in exactly the same way in which men are people. All of these artificial distinctions which we have made between the sexes are bunk. God didn't give man any Divine Grant to be boss. Nature didn't endow males with superior brains or women with superior souls. We were created EQUAL—and if we have muddled through painful years of inequality that's our own fault and we needn't blame it on God.

We're coming out of those years of inequality. We're still gummed up with a lot of spite and silly sentimentality, but we're catching a vision of real equality, at last. There will always be some men strong enough to dominate some women—and some women strong enough to dominate some men. But in the long run domination by either sex is bad medicine for the whole human tribe. Free and willing partnership—that's the only relationship for civilized men and women.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU are rather unfortunate when it comes to breaking things.

You think you are careful, but the first thing you know something has slipped from your grasp and is broken.

You distribute ink spots wherever you go.

You tip things over and kick up the corners of the rugs.

You hit things against the water faucets and mar the varnish on the stairs.

You can't serve yourself or anyone else without getting drops of food or liquid on the table linen or on your own clothes.

A thousand and one annoying things can be laid at your door.

It makes you an unwelcome guest and a pest in your own home.

But what is the reason?

Isn't it a certain impulsiveness?

You dash at everything with too much energy.

You have not reined yourself in control of personal movements.

Have you ever tried to keep a steady hand?

Focus your thoughts on what you are doing and how to do it exactly.

Don't let destructiveness grow, when controlling care is a cure.

It is possible to get a better grasp on yourself, but it will not be an easy thing to do.

Bible Passages

Psalm of Thanksgiving

(II Samuel 22: 1-19)

AND David spake unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul:

And he said, The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer;

The God of my rock; in him will I trust: he is my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my high tower, and my refuge, my saviour; thou savest me from violence.

I will call on the Lord, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies.

When the waves of death compassed me, the floods of ungodly men made me afraid;

The sorrows of hell compassed me about; the snares of death prevented me;

In my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried to my God: and he did hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry did enter into his ears.

Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations of heaven moved and shook, because he was wroth.

There went up a smoke out of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured: coals were kindled by it.

He bowed the heavens also, and came down; and darkness was under his feet.

And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly: and he was seen upon the wings of the wind.

And he made darkness pavilions round about him, dark waters, and thick clouds of the skies.

Through the brightness before him were coals of fire kindled.

And he sent out arrows, and scattered them; lighting, and discomfited them.

And the channels of the sea appeared, the foundations of the world were descovered, at the rebuking of the Lord, at the blast of the breath of his nostrils.

He sent from above, he took me; he drew me out of many waters;

He delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them that hated me: for they were too strong for me.

They prevented me in the day of my calamity: but the Lord was my stay.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Not every small town girl, casting her lot in the theatrical and cabaret world of Broadway, scoots to hell in a hand-basket. There are many detours along the primrose path and they are frequently taken by those who see pitfalls ahead.

Broadway places a premium on beauty. But a higher premium on purity. Ruby Keeler, for instance, fresh with girlish loveliness, came out of Nova Scotia to tap dance in what was perhaps the most notorious of the night clubs — one eventually closed by constant padlockings.

Even the White Way was impressed with her obvious detachment from her sordid surroundings. She was one of "those little girls" jaded night birds were asked nightly "to give a great big hand." Her talent won her feature honors in first rate musical and vaudeville shows and on the screen.

And it was in the hectic night resort she met one of the richest and certainly about the most popular actor on Broadway—Al Jolson. It is recent first page news she became his bride.

Not many years ago a beautiful chorus girl at the Hippodrome suffered an illness that left her blind.

She was affianced to a talented artist of the comic strips, Jack Callahan, before her affliction, and today they are happily married, their rare devotion being one of the legends of Broadway. And there is, of course, the romance of Irving Berlin.

He came up to the bingo-bango land in Tin Pan Alley from a sawdust dive in Chinatown where he was a singing waiter. Yet he lived cleanly and decently. His gentlemanly shyness and talent led indirectly to his marriage to one of America's most beautiful heiresses. Such instances are numerous.

All of which is convincing enough that the young men and women of Broadway who behave themselves and are not beguiled by its sham pleasures need not fear being defiled by the pitch. Broadway itself may have no code of morals, but it bends a respectful knee to those who have.

Noel Coward seems the most engaging actor England has sent to America. Not yet 30, he is London's fair-haired boy and is likely to duplicate his popularity on Broadway. He is now clicking in a hit revue for which he wrote the book, lyrics and music. He scored several years ago as a straight dramatic star in a play of his own. In his revue he displays his versatility in singing, dancing and comedy roles. And until a better one is suggested I shall continue to regard "This Year of Grace" the best named of all revues.

Mr. Coward is no Adonis. He has large translucent ears that would shame the eminent Will Hays, but like Mr. Hays overwhelms with sheer personality. Mr. Coward captures his audiences despite co-starring with the ubiquitous Beatrice Lillie, which statement will not add one cubit to my stature with the intelligentsia or the critics who hailed her with a huzzah. There is a near-society crowd which goes into an ecstasy of frenzy over Miss Lillie because she is Lady something or other. On opening night they organized into such an annoying claque with their absurd plaudits they had to be hissed down.

Miss Lillie was amusing in her early appearance in Charlot's Revue, imported from London several years ago. But to me she has grown rather tiresome with her worn-out trick of missing a step and singing off key. But it is with these obvious and moth-eaten gestures she brings her fervid followers to heel. Certainly no actress has ever received a more rousing first night accolade. O, yes, in English revues the "Intermission" is the "Interval." Isn't that topping, no end?

A gentleman's clothing parlor on the avenue has dispensed with made manikins. They embarrassed prospective patrons with their collar ad profiles and studied clothes consciousness. Men who bought suits expecting to look like them, took their purchases home, tried them on and looked in the glass. Write your own ending.

EXIT SIR WALTER

YOUR children won't read the Victorian novels. Which is by no means an accusatory statement.

Those involved, discursive romances belonged to a far more deliberate and patient generation.

Bulwer and Beaconsfield served a period of limited diversion, stupid dailies and stuffy periodicals.

The long evenings of their times were not broken by radio and phonograph; theaters were few and inaccessible; dancing, "an invention of the devil;" the cribbage and checker board high spots of excitement.

Average family experience was limited to local backgrounds and fenced in by neighborhood horizons.

Multitudes lived and died in cubbyhole towns with no personal knowledge of great cities, much less of foreign lands or wilderness.

Therefore, the novelist, to capture his audience, generally set his characters on historical and exotic stages and socked his narrative full of scenic and descriptive nonessentials.

It was an era of debating societies—conversation was the principal stock-in-trade of entertainment.

News was scarce and the dullest literary ramblings were painstakingly digested and regurgitated in full detail.

But we of the twentieth century are served by so many distractive and informative agencies that such gabble is intolerable.

Screen, camera, illustrated magazines and common schooling have made the whole earth familiar territory.

We resent any fiction method that tringly detours from the direct path of the plot.

Consequently Scott is seldom read. And that's why we're indifferent to Disraeli, ennuied by the Brontes and find ourselves yawning among the pages of Ainsworth and the most of Thackeray.

Of all the Crinoline school, Dickens alone stands unshrunken in his niche. And even his reputation would be safer if his worst books were fewer.

We are told that "bunk" originated with a Congressional gent named Buncombe, who talked 11 hours and said nothing. We always did think "bunk" meant something to go to sleep on.
